The proceedings of the county court in laying out the proposed J.W. McCauley road near Troy were vacated by Circuit Court Judge Knowles and the county was enjoined from opening the highway or taking any further action in the matter. Last September the county court ordered the road opened. It previously accepted the report of the road viewers, who recommended the opening of the highway, as it gave an easier grade than the old road and who also recommended the payment of damages of $50 to Mr. Burns. The court's order allowed no damages. It was attacked by Mr. Burns' attorney, J.A. Burleigh.

Tracklaying was resumed by the East Oregon Lumber company on its railroad yesterday morning. New equipment for use in this work arrived a few days earlier, and on Tuesday a crew of 21 tracklayers came in from Spokane.

Edsall, chief engineer of the East Oregon Lumber company, was engaged as consulting engineer for the city, and E.M. Billings, who also has been in the company's service, was employed to do the actual work. Mr. Billings started Tuesday morning on a new survey of the city.

Three suits, each asking $25,000 damages, were started in the Circuit court this week against C. Murdock, the Day Ridge farmer. The plaintiffs are C.R. Fones, C.E. and George Downing, who were arrested last June on complaint of Mr. Murdock, who alleged criminal trespass upon his ranch.

The Wallowa County Grain Growers, farmers cooperative and successor of the Woolgrowers Warehouse Co., has taken over the farm implement business which has been owned and operated by W.S. Strickler. The transfer was effective January 12 and carries out the plans of the cooperative which were laid when the project of establishing the cooperative was in the formative stage. The cooperative now owns the warehouse facilities of the Woolgrowers in Joseph, Enterprise and Lostine, the facilities of the Renfrow warehouse in Wallowa, the facilities of the Wallowa County Grange supply, and the Strickler farm implement business.

Hudson D. White, 34, whose arrest, conviction, and sentence to 30 years in the penitentiary here six years ago on charges of sodomy and contributing to the delinquency of minors created quite a sensation, escaped from the Oregon penitentiary at Salem Sunday afternoon and was arrested about 9 o'clock that evening when he attempted to hold up two women. ... White was arrested here in January, 1939. Three small children at Wallowa had been taken out on the Pow-watka road and molested.

The Joseph Ranger District of the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest reports a timber cut of 22 million board feet in 1964 on the district. Net receipts from 13 sales amounted to $140,000 of which the county receives 25 percent or about $35,000. ... The total timber cut is estimated to be enough to build approximately 2750 average size homes, more than all the residences in Wallowa county.

Should Hells Canyon be designated as a National Park Preserve? That is the question that will be explored in a meeting scheduled for Friday night in Baker City. The meeting is being sponsored by The Hells Canyon Preservation Council, which lists its headquarters in Joseph, and Blue Mountain Environmental Council of Baker City.

Dr. Lowell Euhus of Enterprise traveled to John Day last Tuesday, Jan. 9, to testify at the next to last of 11 Senate field hearings on rural health care issues held by Sen. Bob Packwood throughout Oregon in a week's time. During his oral testimony, ... Dr. Euhus pointed to the many factors in modern medicine that adversely affect rural physicians and hospitals. He addressed the issue of Medicare reimbursements that are automatically lower for rural hospitals. ... The difficulty of recruiting and retaining physicians and other medical personnel to rural areas because of less pay for longer hours, and the pressure on rural physicians to deliver the most technologically advanced care available, while holding down on medical costs, were among other issues covered by Euhus.
