wallowa.com

Continued from Page A1

multi-tasking requirement, and I'm really struggling to keep pace right now. I'm hoping by taking a year off that I can step away, get re-energized and figure out how I fit into the new system."

With the ongoing demands of the job, Grandi hasn't sat down to come up with a specific to-do list once her sabbatical starts. "All I know is that June 1, I'm going to spend three months with my daughter and my husband. From there, I anticipate coming up with lots of ideas," Grandi said.

Grandi also spoke of the mixed blessing of taking time off. "I like my patients a lot, and many of them are my friends. It's going to be difficult to let go taking care of them." She added the friends she told of the sabbatical congratulated her on the choice.

Grandi voiced some concerns about the current approach to physician recruitment to the area. Citing the year-long search to replace the recently retired Dr. Siebe, Grandi said the concerted into the area no longer exists. "They've kind of slacked off on that. We've gotten some really fabulous people without having to work at it. We need to be working to bring in more physicians or nurse practitioner PAs into our community. It takes more than the effort to recruit physicians

Grandi said. The doctor intends to play a part in the physician recruitment process during her time off. "I want this community to thrive, and I want Winding hospital and the doctor's office to recruit people into the area,"

Waters and Wallowa Mountain Medical to thrive. I feel that without a thriving medical system that we'll have a lot of jobs lost and a lot of people who won't live here because they need care," Grandi said.

News

Grandi wanted to allay any fears that she plans to leave the community and said she is "generally physically and mentally well." She asserts, "I'm making a good choice for me at a good time. I'll probably be in practice another 15-20 years as a physician. We have no desire to leave the community. This is our home."

GRANDI: Sabbatical begins June 1 BOND: Levy to go on May ballot

Continued from Page A1

Approximately $800,000 of the levy's $2 million total covers the interest payments on the bond as well as street maintenance.

The $1.2 million plan applies a triple chip-seal to the 66 percent of the city's streets that are rated in poor condition. Sands projected a 10-20 year lifespan for the repairs. He added that most of the affected streets could see repair this year if voters pass the levy in Mav.

The council discussed the city's need to set up accountability protocols to maintain the integrity of Joseph streets regardless of who is in office or in public works. Joseph resident Kathy Bingham doubted the levy would pass even at only $5 per month if the council showed no public works accountability protocol. "Until I see a face and know their experience and background in public works it's going to be a tough sell — and I want our streets fixed," Bingham said.

Bingham also suggested making a street repair plan/ accountability chart simple enough for citizens to examine and understand. "You want visual accountability," she said.

Councilor Teresa Sajonia made a motion to put the levy, based on the 746 tax lots, on the May ballot. Councilor Liza Butts provided a second. The motion passed unanimously.

Sands expressed optimism after the step forward. "I think this is a realistic package that the majority of people can get behind. It's going to fix our streets at the most reasonable cost, and most people can fit it into their budgets.'

TOURS: Narratives will be an all-hours service

Continued from Page A1

fice (SHPO). Already, a number of people who either own or manage a historic building in Enterprise are planning to record narratives. One recording, for the Enterprise Public Library, has been ready for a couple of weeks.

Young says several audio files should become accessible on the City of Enterprise website probably during March, and the city will encourage members of the public to listen to the narratives and provide feedback that could help guide future recording efforts.

Young advised the Landmarks Commission at its Feb. 12 meeting that recordings need to be made in a quiet environment — meaning with no one talking or producing other audible distractions in the background.

Rudger said the local radio station, KWVR, may be willing to help with editing of voice recordings.

Landmarks commissioners have tentatively named the free-to-use service the Historic Enterprise Audio Tour and the service already has a phone number, 1-541-224-

Young said the audio service uses the technical framework from a private firm, Guide by Cell.

City officials expect the free audio tour to increase visitor traffic in Enterprise, and by the time the grant that began it runs out in two years, it's likely that the city will then pick up the cost to keep the service going. Young said she won't be at all surprised if other public entities, such as the county, decide to climb aboard at that time

"If it works well, it could become much bigger than just Enterprise, is what we're thinking," Young said.

Over-inflated rhetoric on both sides of the debate also contributes to misinformation about the issue. He suggested interested people examine Title 8 of federal law to gain greater understanding of the statutes. He also suggested the war on drugs plays a large role in the average citizen's per-amount of income some states

amass from border security could change some people's perceptions of the issue. "The state of Texas is making many, many more billions of dollars than they're spending on immigration problems. I think American citizens are within their rights to look at their government and ask them to give a clear accounting of what's going on," Urrea said.

tends to keep writing, teaching and learning. "This point in my life is an ongoing education, and when I write my books, I report back to everybody what I've found out. The more I look, the more I find out," the author said.

rideshare program or check it out on the web at

For the moment, Urrea in-Urrea said that looking at the ception of border issues.

Don't have enough garbage to go on service, but need a place to dump it?

Dump your garbage at our office during office hours! Pay for the first nine and the tenth one is FREE! One punch per can or bag. Any questions please call our office.

Cody Irish Enterprise High School

Cody Irish has a cumulative GPA of 3.31. Cody is a two year Spanish student and has taken AP Literature and Composition. He is currently enrolled in Pre-Calculus and is taking College English from the University of Idaho. Thank you Cody for representing EHS well.

Author Urrea has affinity for Wallowa County

By S.F. Tool Wallowa County Chieftain

Luis Alberto Urrea, a multiaward-winning author and featured writer of 2015's Big Read, visited the area as the honored guest and speaker at the Big Read Finale at Hurricane Creek Grange Hall on Feb. 8. Though residing in Evansville, Ill., and traveling widely as an author, the Wallowa Valley holds a special place in the author's heart.

Rich Wandschneider (current Josephy Center library director) invited us out here many, many years ago. I think our first visit was in '97, so we've come back ever since," Urrea said.

A frequent visitor, Urrea loses no time singing the area's praises. "It's heaven, man. I always tell people that when the apocalypse comes, dude, I'm headed for Joseph. It feels sacred to me, and it's a beautiful place and the spirit is really wonderful," Urrea said.

A Mexican-American who grew up in Tijuana, Mexico, Urrea's books often deal with Hispanic issues, and he says that although he notes a low Hispanic population locally, many residents espouse curiosity about, and are open to discussing even sensitive issues such as immigration. "Some places I go, people are really worked up and even angry, but it's never felt that way around here. I've always found it a very neighborly and congenial place to come," Urrea said.

Far from merely using the area as a vacation spot, Urrea often works through his periodic visits. "Last summer I brought much of my family, and we rented one of the houses at Fishtrap for an extra week. I spent a lot of time working. This is the place. The sound of the river and the beauty help me work on my stuff," he said.

Urrea added with a laugh that the mountains and Arrowhead Chocolates proved distractions to writing at times.

S.F. Tool/Chieftain

An animated public speaker, Urrea makes a point during his Feb. 8 public talk.

One of Urrea's award-winning, non-fiction books, "Devil's Highway," seriously examined immigration and U.S. border policy. Asked what he'd change about border policy, Urbefore shaking his head, saying,

"If I could answer that well, I'd be president. I've been studying this for a long time. I think perhaps a policy in Washington of a little more honesty — it's no great shock to people in Walrea thought seriously a moment lowa Couny that Washington's a little 'hincky.'"

For all your construction needs:

- Custom built frame & log structures
- All sizes of remodel jobs
- Custom decks & railings

There is no job too big or small! Give us a call at 541.426.6072

Catch the Bus!

(541) 426-3840 · www.NEOTransit.org

- Intercity Transportation to La Grande Monday and Thursday Weekly ~ Cost $5.00 each way. Free access for veterans medical appointments in La
- Mealsite Bus ~ providing transportation to Senior Center for lunch Cost $1.00 round trip.
- Tuesday and Thursday Shopping Bus provides transportation for shopping and errands throughout Wallowa County ~ Cost $3.00 from Wallowa/Joseph, $2.00 Enterprise only.

Community Connection of Wallowa County

519 W. North Street, Enterprise 541.426.3413 Mon-Thurs 9 to Noon/1-5pm; Fri. 9-1

Specializing in Anti-Aging Skin Therapy Waxing Services, Brow Sculpting High-Perfomance Products 541-398-0759 | Located @ beecrowbee 01 Main Joseph

Free Weights • Women's Center Tanning

202 W. Main Street • Enterprise 541-426-0313

Wallowa County Health Department 758 NW 1st Street, Enterprise, OR (541) 426-4848

We offer services to all ages and income levels including: WIC, family planning, immunizations, flushots, restaurant and hotel licensing, community tobacco prevention and education, chronic disease prevention. We provide equal opportunity programs.

Wallowa County Aviation Banquet

On Saturday, February 21st, the Wallowa County Pilots Association and the Chief Joseph Flying Club are hosting an aviation banquet at Lear's Restaurant in Enterprise. Open to the public.

Featuring a slide presentation of two of our members', Brad Stephens and Nick Reid, recent trip to Alaska in their airplanes.

> 3 dinner choices: Stuffed Rock Cornish Hen, $12 Chicken Cordon Blue, $12 Pork Prime Rib, $14 or you can order off of Lear's menu.

No tickets are needed, you will pay after your dinner. Business meeting at 5 PM to discuss the upcoming fly-in breakfast. No host social hour at 6 PM. Dinner served at 7 PM.

If you have any questions, please call Bill Ables or Tim Locke at 263-1327 or 263-0470.