Grand jury drops assault charge

Following an alleged Jan. 26 domestic violence incident that initially planted 33-year-old Tyler Douglas Long in the Union County jail facing one felony and three misdemeanor charges, on Feb. 24 a Wallowa County grand jury dropped the assault-4, Class C felony charge against Douglas and indicted him on three Class A misdemeanor charges and one Class B misdemeanor.

According to Circuit Court records, Long initially was accused of physically injuring Hannah Staicoff on Jan. 26. Staicoff is an adult documented as living at the same rural Enterprise address as Long.

The felony charge was dropped, but Long still faces one Class A misdemeanor charge for the same offense. In addition, Long was indicted on two separate Menacing

Class A misdemeanor charges for allegedly firing a shotgun through the floor of the residence plus throwing and smashing furniture against a wall. The Class B misdemeanor charge alleges that Long made "offensive physical contact" with Staicoff.

Long, released on bond, was arraigned Feb. 25 in the Wallowa County Courthouse and is scheduled for an April 8 hearing plea.

EHS pair selling used prom dresses again

ENTERPRISE — Emma Hall and Sarah Madsen, two seniors from Enterprise High School, are collecting used prom dresses which they will be displaying at Stage 1.

This is the third year that Hall and Madsen are operating a business that they call Pride & Preju-Dress. They were looking for a creative, fun way to raise money for a local cause and with prom just around the corner, they figured that girls may need a chic, affordable place to get their prom outfits.

Hall and Madsen say they especially encourage underclassmen who are new to the prom scene and don't want to spend a lot of money to come and look at the selection. There will be a variety of sizes and brands, including Ann

Taylor Loft and Macy's. Madsen says, "This business isn't only for prom; there are options for other dances and formal events too."

They will be selling these dresses at Stage 1 in Enterprise March 14. There will be a tea party/fashion show to preview the new dresses. Only 40 tickets are available. Contact Emma Hall at 541-

263-2899 to order them. The tea party will start at 11 a.m. The sale will go from 12 to 4 p.m.

Dress donations can be dropped off at the Enterprise school office.

As this is Hall and Madsen's last year running the program, they are looking for an underclassman to take over the business for next year.
