She was married to Glenn Harris, then later married Michael Anthony. Terri worked for Training Employment Consortium (TEC), State of California Judicial, and Moffit Brothers. She loved to knit, crochet, spend time with family and friends, and watch baseball and football. She was one of a kind and so loving. She always saw the good in everyone and never judged.

Terri is survived by her husband Michael, children Josh (Denise) Harris of La Grande, Kyra Harris of Cove, parents Doug McDaniel and Gail Hammack of Lostine, siblings Todd McDaniel of Beaverton, Darcy Luer of Kirkland, Wash., Mike McDaniel of Osburn, Idaho, and Pat McDaniel of Boise; and three grandchildren. Harold R. "Hal" Long, born Feb. 21, 1942, passed away peacefully, surrounded by his family and guide dog, Floyd, on July 19, 2015.

Hal was born in Detroit, Mich., to Karl R. and Dorothy H. (McPherson) Long. He grew up in Detroit, an only child who enjoyed summers with his cousins on his grandparents' farm. Karl died when Hal was eight — a watershed event in a young boy's life.

After high school graduation, Hal enlisted in the USMC, where he did three tours in Vietnam, plus calls to other duty. He returned to graduate from University of Michigan in mechanical engineering. He also studied at The Actors Studio in NYC.

He fondly remembers his 1.5 seasons playing hockey with the NY Rangers — just one of his many interests.

Hal married, and had two sons. He moved his family to Oregon in the mid-seventies.

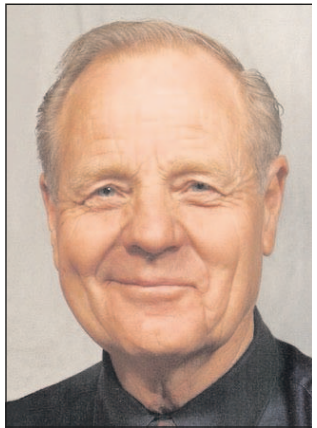

In Newberg, he became involved with Lumiere Players, a troupe he later nourished there, and in Tualatin.

Hal lost his sight in the late nineties. He then gave writing his full attention. He wrote and directed numerous plays, many performed by the Lumiere Players. He moved to Tigard, married Lynn Docekal Wolf in 2001. They grew Lumiere Players from their home in Tualatin, performing for years at The Tualatin Heritage Center and later grew a branch of Lumiere in their new home in Joseph.

Hal is survived by his wife Lynn, sons Chris (Natalie) and Tom (Kara) Long, plus Matt Wolf, Amy Wolf (Arion Canniff), six much-loved grandsons, his guide dog Floyd, best friend Dan Hobbs, several cherished cousins, numerous friends, and his Lumiere Players. Tenga Familial!

Quilt Guild Show winners announced
