Schools spotlight excellence with academic awards

By Kathleen Ellyn Wallowa County Chieftain

It takes an outstanding athlete just three months to win his or her letter and local fame. It takes outstanding academics nine months of school and over 100 assignments on which they get perfect scores to win a letter or award. Some awards require even more than a 4.0 grade-point average. And Enterprise has many outstanding students.

Those students were honored and in some cases given scholarships on May 23. The event, which was originally conceived by the late Clyde Holliday back in 1981, has continued uninterrupted since Freshman Adagia Latta took home a lion's share of awards. Teacher Kevin Mc-Cadden said he'd yet to challenge her intellect, but hoped to in the coming years.

Outstanding Senior Girl Emma Carlsen won several awards after carrying 20 college-level classes.

And Justin Exon's school career from difficult beginnings to senior honor roll and double accolades over the past week or so earning the Eagles Most Valuable Player award as well as scholar athlete award and selection to the Eastern Oregon Conference's second team all-league squad.

Hayward, 15, sports a 3.91 GPA and the top batting average for the Eagles, banging out hits at a .444 clip. He also participates in EHS basketball. He counts both sports as well as golf on his list of hobbies. Summer baseball in La Grande is next on his schedule.

Hayward is the son of Geoff and Missy Hayward of Enterprise.

Flora School Days will celebrate the 100th year for the school at the annual pioneer skills day Saturday, June 4, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Flora.

A birthday cake an 100 mini cupcakes baked and donated by the Rim Rock Inn will set off the celebration.

"Birthday gifts" (drawings) will be given out to the public every hour, but only to those still in attendance. "So fill out your entry forms early and stay late," advises committee member Sarah Thompson.

The Dutch oven lunch will begin around noon, with tickets sold in the Country Store. The meal is $10 this year and includes a drink, along with a traditional spoon bread.

Head Cook Dan Thompson and his team will be cooking approximately 30 additional meals this year, and as always, pie will be served after lunch.

School Days consists of celebrating not only the 100 years in the life of a buildings, but hundreds of years of pioneer life and the skills that helped them survive. In the past soap makers, blacksmiths, spinners, weavers, jewelry makers, quilters, painters and many more have participated in the day-long event. 'So far we have added a farrier and hopefully the blacksmith will be making the shoes for the horses too, said Thompson, a blacksmith himself Quilts of Valor will once again in be in attendance to award at least two quilts to veterans. This presentation will be in the afternoon. Old-time musicians are always a draw in the Holloway Room, in the auditorium or on the front porch, depending on where they setup for the year. Besides food tickets, the Country Store will be taking orders for the "Happy 100th"

T-shirt produced by ArtBeat Inc. in Lewiston. The spoon bread from lunch will be in "meal in a jar" form in the store, along with rabbit sausage donated as a fundraiser for the school by Benbrook Farms outside of Troy. Handmade items are available from local artisans and the School Days demonstrators at their booths or in the store.

A tour of the town, the bell and the cemetery using the mule-drawn wagon will add a stop on the way through town. The old First State Bank building story will be told by wagon tour docent Jeff Curry, Flora School attendee and life-long Wallowa County res-
