On June 3, Wallowa Elementary sixth-graders had a rendezvous with a George Washington theme. They began the day with the reveal of the portrait of George Washington that was donated by Mt. Vernon. The sixth-graders were the regiment leaders, in charge of groups containing K-5 students. Each group spent the day rotating through eight stations that included: Bob Both, who taught surveying; Ann Bloom of the OSU extension office, who helped them cook "hoe cakes"; Teresa Henke taught about the history of the Rembrandt Peale portrait and how to draw a portrait; and Sadie Kennedy taught about early American documents. Other station leaders were: Heather Bowers, colonial games and dancing; Jori Journingan, who shared a game about Washington's journey to the presidency; and the city library, where Debi Lind and Carol Mock taught about Washington's character and the rules of civility.
