Legislators trying to make it easier to maintain old cemeteries

Oregon Capital Insider

The problem of abandoned cemeteries has attracted the notice of Rep. David Gomberg, D-Otis, who's proposed a bill to stem their slide into neglect and disrepair.

Gomberg recently testified before the House Agriculture Committee that people are increasingly opting to be cremated, negatively affecting the business model of small

As these operations go out of business and stop paying property taxes, they're foreclosed upon by county governments that lack funds to maintain the cemeteries, he said.

Oregon's Lincoln County, from where Gomberg hails, there are nine abandoned cemeteries, he said.

Under House Bill 2516, the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department would issue permits to entities — such as the Boy Scouts or Veterans of Foreign Wars — to "restore, maintain and preserve" abandoned cemeteries.

Joseph's Steven Beckman has his arm raised in victory after defeating Bonanza's Oak Tenold in the class 2A/1A 106-pound state championship match Saturday at Memorial Coliseum in Portland.

MEDALS

Although he's the topranked wrestler in his weight class, Farwell isn't one to sit on his laurels.

"I'm hoping to get back there next year, but at the same time, being number one this year influences where kids go next year. I may grow 10 pounds, and it'll be a completely different experience," he said.

Lund, a sophomore, came away from the tournament bearing a bronze medal for his efforts. He went to state as a freshman and walked away with a fourth place. Lund competed with many of the kids he wrestled last year.

"I feel pretty good about my performance. I beat the kid (Marcus Furtado of Adrian) who beat me out at District and for third place at state last year," he said.

Coach Troy Farwell couldn't be happier with his team's performance.

"I predicted we'd place in the top ten this year, and we finished seventh.'

The coach said he is helping out the Enterprise Junior High wrestlers for the next week, then he plans to start looking at wrestling camps for his team to attend. Farwell also plans to gain three to four more wrestlers, win district and place in the top four at state next year.

"The team is young, and we're only losing one senior. We all get to go back over next year let's hope," Farwell said.

Joseph Charter School took two of its wrestlers who returned with gold and fourth place medals.

Steven Beckman, an Eagles sophomore, wrestled at 106 lbs. and brought back the gold from his first trip to state. He said he didn't think he wrestled as well as he could have. The seeding and his first trip to state weighed on him.

"It felt like it put more pressure on me," he said. Beckman also hadn't previously wrestled any of his opponents, which he said was intimidating.

Beckman isn't worried he'll slack off now that he holds the title.

"I've got to keep that title for next year, and to do that I'll have to wrestle well," he JCS junior Rylie Warnock wrestled at 170 lbs. and said he enjoyed his first trip to state. He didn't feel intimidated. "I got out on the mat and all my coaches were there and my parents were there. It was the same people I'm used to seeing." Warnock, seeded third, walked away with a fourth place ribbon. "I'd like to have walked away with a third or higher, but I had fun," he said.

Coach Tim Kiesecker said the tournament was fun with an amazing display of talent.

Both my kids wrestled really well, and they both had a lot of fun, even outside the tournament. They're both a pleasure to be around," he Kiesecker also thinks he'll go back to state next year.

"With a sophomore and a junior, I'm looking forward to going back, but you just never know," he said.

As it happened, the Outlaws placed seventh and the Eagles placed ninth in a field of nearly three dozen teams. One more thing: Every wrestler on both teams indulged themselves with either candy or a hearty meal after their final matches. Three months of dieting can do that to a person

The quarter of truth

The fourth quarter started a see-saw battle with the Eagles battling hard to take a 32-31 lead a minute into the quarter. Back and forth buckets saw the Eagles with their last lead at 37-36 with five minutes remaining. Starter Aaron Borgerding, fouled out a minute previously, putting a dent in the Eagles machine.

Although the Eagles played hard, visible exhaustion set in along with an inability to find the bucket. Foul trouble ensued as well with most of the Hawks having a the helpless Eagles watched the Hawks pull inexorably ahead, leading 49-40 with 1:01 remaining.

After a timeout and substitution the Eagles suddenly caught fire, scoring 10 points in a heroic effort during that final minute. However, foul trouble again reared its head and vital free throw conversions by the Hawks put an end to the Eagles playoff hopes.

Aftermath

Sophomore player Tyler Homan, who shares the Chieftain's player of the game honors with senior Cayden DeLury, said the team never gave up no matter how bleak the situation.

"We've never thought we were out of just about any game we played. We knew if we played like we know we can play, we can win any game against any team. The team that made their shots ended up winning, and we made errors at crucial moments that cost us the game," he said.

at crucial times resulted in the loss. "We started out strong, crashing the boards, attacking and hitting the hoop, and when we went away from that our whole game plan fell apart." Fulfer credited his team for staying in the game when the future didn't look rosy. "They battled, battled and battled and got within three, but a couple of rebounds didn't go our way at he end. We almost made a pretty awesome comeback," he said. Cayden DeLury led the team scoring with 19 in the bucket while Jake Chrisman poured 12 into the slot. Caevan Murray slid in seven points while Aaron Borgerding's six points rounded out the top scoring.
