

Parkinson's group meets

Mike and Linda Koloski have reconvened the Wallowa County Parkinson's Support Group, which met March 12.

Mike said the meeting, in the Wallowa Memorial Hospital Conference Room, included "a small but very enthusiastic cadre of Parkinson's Disease patients, care partners and family." Koloski said they met to share information and fellowship.

Parkinson's is a progressive movement disorder suffered by 3 to 5 percent of humans. Though incurable at present, it can be managed through medication, exercise and diet.

Based on national statistics, Koloski estimates there may be as many as 375 people in Wallowa County who have the disease.

We welcomes them and their loved ones to the group's next monthly meeting. For more information on the support group call Mike or Linda at 541-426-8604.

MOW PLOW?

Perfect for a Wallowa County spring. Larry Langerman of Enterprise devised this clever — and useful — lawnmower with attached snowplow that has attracted a lot of attention and smiles from Safeway customers and passersby, but no buyer (yet). "I've used it to plow snow over by the Senior Center when there's just an inch or two," he said. "It works great." Langerman, who repairs mowers and other things, recently dropped the price of his self-propelled "snow-mower" to $30.

4-H donates 3,000 pounds of food

Horse Club asked for donations on horseback

In February, 4-H programs in Wallowa County collected 3,335 pounds of donated food for local pantries.

Each 4-H Club was encouraged to be creative in how they collect food. The Jitters and Critters Club, led by Melissa Lowe and Latina Fisher, partnered with the grocery store in Wallowa to collect donations in boxes at the store, and the store even put together special packages that their customers could purchase and donate.

Area 4-H students donated 3,000 pounds of food to local banks.

The Golden Arrow Club, led by Nancy Maasdam, was encouraged to bring personal donations to the club. The Nez Perce Riders 4-H Horse Club, led by Cammie Hale and Katie Howard, encouraged its members to donate themselves, and also went house-to-house on horseback to ask for community donations. Other clubs donated as well.

Donations were given to food banks in Enterprise, Wallowa and at a local church. OSU Extension Service across the state participate in this food drive for the month of February.

QUALLE

With the town of Chinook in sight I tried to ease the tension by telling the little woman we were kind of retracing Chief Joseph's trek from the Wallowa Valley and his last stand was about twenty miles from where we were. I pointed out the boundary plateau that was visible and in Canada. She seemed to have no interest in history and I considered chastising her for trying to ruin an otherwise wonderful experience.

When we return to Wallowa County due to bad weather and poor road conditions I think I will only consider the familiar interstate and point out individual sage brush I now recognize. People with no sense of adventure miss a lot when traveling.

I found a poem that suits this winter:

It takes patience and vigilance, the power to persist and the power to endure. It takes grit in the people to match the granite in the climate. They hang on, they grope for firmness, and sometimes they win.

- Carlyle King.

The same can be said for taking side roads.

Barrie Qualle is a local columnist for the Chieftain.
