

CRITFC announces new executive director

Jaime Pinkham will take over April 24

EO Media Group

A new executive director is coming to the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission.

Jaime Pinkham, a member of the Nez Perce Tribe with more than 30 years of experience in American Indian affairs, will take over at CRITFC beginning April 24. The Portland-based commission works on behalf of four tribes, including the Umatilla, Warm Springs, Yakama and Nez Perce, to enforce treaty fishing rights and influence fisheries management.

With his selection, Pinkham becomes the 10th director of CRITFC in 40 years.

"As a treaty fisher and hunter, I am humbled to work with the member tribes of CRITFC," Pinkham said in a statement. "CRITFC plays an important role working at the intersection of each tribe's individual autonomy and their unified voice. Healthy and harvestable salmon runs are fundamental to the sovereign identities and cultures of the four member tribes."

For the last eight years, Pinkham has served as vice president of the Bush Foundation in Saint Paul, Minnesota, where he led the Native Nations program. His work led to the creation of the Native Governance Center, a nonprofit providing technical support to tribes in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota as they redesigned their government systems.

Prior to that, Pinkham spent two decades in the Pacific Northwest advocating for tribal sovereignty and treaty rights, including a stint at CRITFC from 2005 to 2008 as watershed development manager.

Pinkham has a degree in forestry from Oregon State University. He has twice been elected to the Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee, and led its natural resources program focused on salmon restoration, land acquisition, wolf recovery and water rights negotiations.

CRITFC chairman Leland Bill said Pinkham's work on tribal sovereignty and natural resources stood out among the field of candidates for executive director.

"We look forward to working with Jaime as we face a number of current issues that impact salmon and tribal treaty fishing rights, including climate change, an altered federal government landscape and the renegotiation of the Columbia River Treaty."

Pinkham succeeds Paul Lumley, who served for eight years before leaving to lead the Native American Youth and Family Association in Portland. Rob Lothrop will continue to serve as interim executive director until Pinkham arrives.

100 YEARS AGO March 29 1917

Motorcar service will be inaugurated between La Grande and Elgin next Tuesday, April 2. Wm. McMurry, general passenger agent of the O-W railroad, announced that the new service probably would consist of two round trips daily except Sunday, about 50 minutes being required to go over the road.

Perhaps the long and anxiously awaited spring break up is here. Higher temperatures, with occasional periods of warm sun and wind, have prevailed since the cold of Sunday, and the snow has disappeared rapidly in town.

More men are wanted in all branches of the United States army, and mayors of all cities in Oregon have received letters during the week asking their assistance in stimulating recruiting.

John Edgmand killed a large cougar a few days ago a short distance above the Chico post office on the Chesnimnus. It measured seven feet from tip to tip and looked like a young lion.

Ben Johnson has kept tab on his thermometer, every morning since late fall, on the Imnaha. He finds that for 140 days without a break, there was freezing temperatures every morning. Recalling that

The Enterprise chamber of commerce will receive delivery of a 1947 5-passenger Ford coupe April 20. This car will be given away on the last day of the county fair, July 6, to the holder of a lucky ticket.

The annual drive to raise funds to carry on the fight against cancer is now under way in Wallowa County and will continue throughout the month of April. The county's quota is $400.

On March 29, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reams and baby daughter, and Wallace Pushee started for John Day by car, with a trailer in which were suitcases, the baby's buggy and other things, as Mrs. Reams and baby had planned to stay in John Day with her mother for a month. When they got to La Grande they found the trailer was missing.

Joseph High's play day and volleyball championship series was captured by a fast-clicking Wallowa volleyball team. In addition to volleyball, the girls competed in sack races, basketball relay races and wheelbarrow races.

A beer bottle was thrown through one of the windows of the Chieftain office Saturday night.
