

Online marketplace forming for county

Manuels are developing four history centers

Kristy Athens of Enterprise is launching a new business that will allow Wallowa County businesses to compete with Amazon for online orders.

Her business is an e-commerce site called "Genuine Wallowa County" and will feature products (and possibly services) made or offered in Wallowa County only.

"We have so much talent in the county — we need a showcase for it," Athens said. "What's so great about this county is we have so many people who make something. People who visit or used to live here want to remember and share Wallowa County and how amazing everything here is."

The ecommerce business would allow those people the opportunity to say "this is what I'm talking about" by ordering and shipping Wallowa-made products using the online marketing tool.

The website will sell product online to anyone in the world, and the focus will be on quality and authenticity.

"GWC will be a marketing tool for Wallowa County businesses, as well as an additional sales channel," Athens said. "And I'll do all the work."

At this point, Athens is still gathering information about how the business could most benefit county businesses. To that end, she has launched a survey. Visit survey.monkey.com/r/3LDK6RR. Please complete the survey by Nov. 23.

You are welcome to answer anonymously, but if you would like to continue to learn about this opportunity as it unfolds, please complete the contact info section at the end of the survey.

"There are lots of spaces for comments — the more input I have at this stage, the better Genuine Wallowa County will serve all of us," said Athens.

You can also email or call Athens at genuinewallowacounty@gmail.com or 541-406-0831. The website is not up yet, but there is a Facebook page genuinewallowacounty. She has received 24 survey responses so far but is hoping for many more.

This sign has gone up at the site where the Manuels are planning on building four history centers.

In 2017 the estimated cost of that development was $42 million.

The nonprofit Veterans Restorative Care Center received a $30,000 grant from USDA Rural Development to develop a business plan in 2017 and this week confirmed that plans involving several other stakeholders were in development.

The striking Manuel Museum building in Joseph, the large log structure across from the Joseph Center, is now owned by Kirk Makin and in addition to housing several business offices, serves as a multi-unit vacation rental.

This time around, the Manuels are developing four small history centers: A Native American center, a military history center, a pioneer history center and a center combining the subjects of history and bronze casting.

A ground-breaking ceremony took place at the new location one-quarter mile outside Enterprise on the right side of Highway 82 as you travel from Enterprise to Joseph. The property is the graveled square where drilling equipment used to be parked.

A sign advertising the new centers has been erected. The Manuels do not have a precise finish date but plan to open the business some time in 2019.

Joseph High aviation program earns $12,000 grant

Money from American Airlines destined to buy flight simulators

By Kana Oliver
For the Chieftain

The New Heights Aviation Program at Joseph Charter School has received a $12,000 grant from American Airlines to support the flight simulation portion of its program.

New Heights will purchase two Redbird TD2 simulators along with a simulation curriculum with the grant money.

The curriculum integrates science, technology, engineering and math, and is aligned to the Next Generation Science Standards. The curriculum will tie in, or create scaffolding for, the association's Learn to Fly curriculum used by Joseph Charter High School students.

The emphasis of the simulator program is to expose students to aerospace and aviation and create a feeder program for the high school aerospace program, post-secondary flight training and eventually commercial and airline transport pilot ratings.

The simulation program will focus both on the science of flight and actual hands-on experience.

Principal Sherri Kilgore and Supt. Lance Homan will travel to Dallas to accept the grant in December.

In addition to providing curriculum for the Learn to Fly program, Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association has awarded $5,000 scholarships to 22 students selected from a pool of 1,300 applicants nationwide in the 2018 You Can Fly High School Flight Training Scholarship Program.
