Rental, utilities assistance available from the state

Chieftain staff

ENTERPRISE — Starting Wednesday, May 19, qualified renters were able to submit applications to the Oregon Emergency Rental Assistance Program for funding to pay rent, rent arrears, future rent and certain home utility costs, according to a press release.

The program will distribute $204 million to qualified renters who have experienced financial hardship due to the coronavirus pandemic and are at risk of homelessness or housing instability.

“For the first time, renters can access rental assistance through a statewide, centralized application portal,” said Margaret Salazar, executive director of the Oregon Housing and Community Services. “Together with our community-based partners, we are prioritizing resources toward our most vulnerable households to help keep Oregonians in their homes during these challenging times.”

The OHCS is coordinating with local administrators — 17 community action agencies and one public housing authority — across the state to emphasize an equitable approach in the processing of applications and distribution of funds. This coordinated partnership helps ensure OERAP makes the greatest impact on reducing housing instability and homelessness.

Relief resources will be distributed to renters who meet the following federal eligibility requirements:

- Have income less than 80% of Area Median Income.
- Have an individual in the household who has qualified for unemployment benefits or experienced a reduction in household income, incurred significant costs or experienced other financial hardship due to the coronavirus pandemic.
- Demonstrates a risk of experiencing homelessness or housing instability due to past-due rent or utilities.

Federal guidance requires that grantees prioritize households with incomes less than 50% AMI and households with one or more members who have been unemployed for at least 90 days.

“The public health emergency underscores for all of us the critical importance that a safe, stable, affordable home free of discrimination plays to our health and well-being,” said Andrea Bell, director of housing stabilization at OHCS. “I’m grateful we and our many community partners have taken intentional steps to direct resources toward eviction prevention and long-term stability to help relieve some of the financial burden Oregonians have faced during this pandemic.”

Applications will be accepted on a continuous basis until 2022 or until program funds run out. In most cases, payment will be made directly to the landlord or utility provider. To find out additional information about criteria or to apply to the OERAP program visit OregonRentalAssistance.org.

CLASS AD DEADLINE 10:00am MONDAY

Chieftain staff

WALLOWA — It was a short, quiet meeting Tuesday, May 18, when the Wallowa City Council held its regular session at City Hall.

“It was a real quiet meeting,” Mayor Gary Hulse said Monday. “That’s the way we like them.”

The top item on the agenda was an executive session during which the council conducted annual employee evaluations. After returning to open session, the council approved a 2.5% pay increase for city employees.

During an old business item, the council heard a request by Ben Deal, who operates Back Achers building supply on city-owned property he leases. In April, the council agreed to extend the lease another five years. Last week, Deal told the council he still has another two years on the current lease and asked the extension run five years beyond that two-year time frame. However, the council decided to just keep the renewed lease to five years.

Under department reports, Hulse said, the city Public Works Department is still awaiting Anderson Perry Engineers’ report on the city sewer system.

Hulse, who doubles as fire chief, reported the city is up to about 45 fire calls this year and the department got its new hydraulic rescue tool mounted.

A guest at the meeting, Marcie Sheehy, thanked the council for replacing 17 trees downtown.

The council’s next meeting will be Tuesday, June 21.
