

Enjoy original music at Tunesmith Night

Show will be presented live and online

Go! staff

ENTERPRISE — The Walla Walla Valley Music Alliance continues its 16th season of Tunesmith Night with a live, in-person audience for the first time since the COVID-19 pandemic started.

The Saturday, Dec. 11, show features songwriters Meredith Lane, Jeremy James Meyer and Brittany Brook. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. with the performance starting at 7 p.m. at the historic Odd Fellows Hall, 202 E. North St. Admission is $10 per person. Proof of COVID vaccination and a mask will be required for attendance.

The show will also be streamed live to WVMA's YouTube channel and the Music Alliance website, www.wvmusicalliance.org.

The three songwriters will share original work in a round-robin format.

MEREDITH LANE

Meredith Lane is a singer/songwriter who grew up playing and writing music in Enterprise. Her most recent release, "Commissioned Love Songs," is her first fully original album and came out in early November. She enjoys crossing genres and wants to experiment with different sounds in the near future. She is currently living in Moscow, Idaho, where she plays gigs from time to time.

JEREMY JAMES MEYER

Jeremy James Meyer is described as "an artificer of song. A songwriter's songwriter. He crafts redemptive songs full of woody rock 'n' roll tones." He spent the last decade "drifting around, a tool belt troubadour, working carpentry by day, bringing folk music to the people at night."

BRITTANY BROOK

Brittany Brook is a Montana-
