Tippet learning the ropes as 4-H president

By ANN BLOOM
For the Wallowa County Chieftain

WALLOWA COUNTY — Sara Tippet has been immersed in 4-H since she was in the fourth grade. Now, she has come full circle as the new president of the Wallowa County 4-H Leaders' Association.

She was in 4-H for eight years participating in the Golden Arrow Livestock Club, and is now a co-leader for that club, along with Nancy Maasdam, her former leader. As a 4-H member, she was also in the Wallowa County Wranglers Horse Club and participated in 4-H cooking and sewing. She was also on the 4-H court. It goes without saying that she brings a lot of 4-H knowledge and experience to her new position as president.

Tippet admits she is still learning the ropes of the job.

"I'm still learning a lot," she said, "and how it all works."

But she has help. "(We) have a solid program in Wallowa County and I'm interested in seeing what I can do with that," she said.

She specifically mentioned the knowledgeable people and resources the county has, such as other 4-H leaders, the Oregon State University Extension Service and other resources as ones she can turn to for help.

Some of her plans include getting back into the schools to promote the 4-H program, since some plans had to be put on hold due to the pandemic. She said she wants to get back into the schools, "to let them (the students) know what 4-H is." She explained that 4-H is other things and not, "just raising a market animal."

Tippet said she sees her role as the president as doing what is best for the 4-H program and continuing to make it what it is and, "encouraging the youth of Wallowa County to get involved. Also

Not only has Tippet been involved with 4-H, but her community involvement stretches to the Elgin Stampede and the 2006 Chief Joseph Days Court. She is currently a director for the Chief Joseph Days organization.

Tippet grew up in Enterprise. Her family includes two brothers who were involved with 4-H, which is how she learned about 4-H. She showed sheep and was enrolled in sewing and in cooking and horse clubs. She has a culinary arts oversees the 4-H program, is looking forward to working with Tippet, whom she has known since she started in 4-H.

"For me, I will rely on her advice quite a bit throughout the year. She will be my right hand. I will have close contact with her regarding decisions on 4-H," Warnock said.

Warnock said that the 4-H Leaders' Association is the fundraising and leadership council of the 4-H program.

She said she is anticipating, "partnering with her (Tippet) and supporting her new ideas and energy."

"We are so lucky. We have such good volunteers that love our program and are happy to pass our traditions to the next generation," she said.

Both Tippet and Warnock have similar philosophies of 4-H and what it brings to youth and the community. If there is one thing Tippet wants people to know about 4-H she said it is what participation in 4-H can do for youth.

"4-H gives to kids," she said. "They learn a lot. It taught me to speak, be sincere and humble. Not just in a show ring."

She said youths in 4-H learn to present themselves to people and learn to communicate with their peers.

"That is a big part of 4-H," she said. "You learn life skills. As you get older, you see that."

"4-H GIVES TO KIDS. THEY LEARN A LOT. IT TAUGHT ME TO SPEAK, BE SINCERE AND HUMBLE. NOT JUST IN A SHOW RING."

(encouraging) the adults to get involved and give back to the community."

Her position as president is for two years. Prior to becoming president, she was vice president for two years.

She mentioned there are many potential leaders and resources in Wallowa County that could help with 4-H clubs.

There are some, "great photographers in Wallowa County and Wallowa resources has science" resources experience, she said. "It is just a matter of finding them to teach the youth."

degree from Walla Walla Community College.

"I have a passion for cooking and baking," she said.

After moving back to Wallowa County and working for a bakery, she accepted a position at Community Bank. She has been with the bank for 10 years and is the bank manager.

"Community Bank is very community oriented," she said, which allows her to be part of 4-H and Chief Joseph Days.

Joseph chamber resists downtown sidewalk project

Concerned ODOT work will interfere with tourism

By BILL BRADSHAW
Wallowa County Chieftain

JOSEPH — A planned project on Joseph's Main Street drew objections from the Joseph Chamber of Commerce in a letter submitted to the Joseph City Council at its meeting Thursday, March 3.

The Oregon Department of Transportation is planning to install ramps to upgrade sidewalks in compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act beginning this summer. The issue has been discussed at council meetings for months.

In the letter submitted by Jude Graham of the chamber, it was stated that the chamber is concerned that ODOT is not giving due consideration to Joseph's downtown that will be adversely impacted by construction scheduled to take place during the peak tourist season.

"At present, your constituents, due to the lack of open meetings, have not had adequate time to thoroughly review proposed site plans and understand the ODOT proposal," the letter stated. "Nor has there been sufficient opportunity to communicate directly with ODOT to completely develop and understanding of all the aspects and segments of the ODOT project."

The chamber also fears ODOT is not taking into consideration the time frame necessary to accomplish the project without hindering tourism events downtown.

"They do not offer any concessions to mediate the impacts which may well be more than what we had bargained for," the letter stated, adding that the ODOT schedule is at the peak time for tourism events.

The letter said the chamber does not want to eliminate the sidewalk project, but wants to work with the City Council to postpone it to present concerns and liability issues before ODOT breaks ground and launch a social media and newspaper campaign to solicit public support of the City Council to act on behalf of the citizenry and business community.

Pro-Tem Administrator Brock Eckstein said after the meeting that there have been three public hearings on the ODOT project in the past six months.

"The only solution brought to the hearings is to either cancel it, which absolutely can't happen unless the city wants to accept all liability for ADA discrepancies, or to kick the can down the road more years, which we then run the risk of ODOT either pulling out altogether or just doing it their way," he said.

In another matter, the council heard a library report from Councilor Kirsten Rohla on behalf of the absent librarian Eric Shoudel. She said that although the city missed out on a previous grant, a $15,000 grant is coming through to pay for a consultant in the city's efforts to revamp the old Blackburn Building at N. 100 East St. The building will become the new City Library. At the same time, the current library in City Hall will become a meeting room for the council and other purposes.

In other business, the council:

- Accepted the resignation of Councilor Tammy Jones. No action toward replacing her was taken.

- Changed an ordinance establishing a city Planning Commission to require members be registered voters within Wallowa County and only allow one member to live outside city limits or be actively involved in the real estate business.

- Approved an ordinance to grant to Zippy Fiber Northwest a franchise for telephone and other communications purposes.

- Approved a request by Elkhorn Media to provide radio and Facebook services.

- Reviewed a snow-removal plan with a map detailing the highest priorities for snow plowing when 4 inches of fresh snow accumulates on city streets.

- Formed a steering task force for the proposed Daggett Sports Complex on North East Street.

- Approved street closures for vendors for July 27-31 for the Chief Joseph Days Rodeo.

- Approved street closures for vendors for Aug. 26-27 for the Wallowa Mountain Cruise.

The next council meeting will be April 7.

MEET THE HEMSWORTH FAMILY!

MIKE CRAWFORD

We're going to go to the sidelines this week, and focus on Enterprise girls head coach Mike Crawford. Crawford has called it a career after 33 seasons leading the girls basketball program. In that time, the team amassed a record of 520-275, won the 1996 state championship, took second in 2001 and compiled 14 20-win seasons. Congrats on a fantastic career!
