Voters may decide new firearms requirements

Only two initiatives appear likely to qualify for a statewide vote Nov. 8 as Oregon's deadline approaches for petitioners to submit signatures.

That deadline is Friday. The state Elections Division will have up to 30 days afterward to verify signatures, generally done with sampling.

The mass shootings in Buffalo, N.Y., and Uvalde, Texas, have given momentum to advocates of a measure to set new requirements for firearms permits and limit ammunition magazines to 10 rounds each.

At the end of May, they had submitted barely 2,500 of the 112,020 signatures required to qualify it for the statewide ballot. One week before the deadline, that total had shot up to around 120,000 — and a chief petitioner says the goal is 140,000.

The Rev. Dr. W.J. Mark Knutson, pastor of Augustana Lutheran Church in Portland, said a wet spring and the ongoing coronavirus pandemic slowed signature-gathering efforts by 500 volunteers.

Then came Buffalo, where

The mass shootings in Buffalo, N.Y., and Uvalde, Texas, have given momentum to advocates of a measure to set new requirements for firearms permits and limit ammunition magazines to 10 rounds each.

10 Black people were shot dead May 14 in a supermarket, and Uvalde, where 19 children and two teachers died 10 days later at Robb Elementary School.

"People were saying they could not sit anymore, so we had 1,000 new volunteers come forward to join the 500," Knutson said in an interview. "A lot were parents with children — it was pretty amazing. They are learning about democracy."

"The process is as important as the result — democratic action by the people. In this nation right now, we need to see democracy at work."

In addition to the limit on ammunition magazines, the measure would require people to undergo classroom and live-fire training before they obtain a firearms permit, and complete background checks. (Current law allows a purchaser to obtain a gun even if the check is incomplete after three days; the measure would require the check to be completed.)

The other initiative awaiting qualification for the ballot is a proposed constitutional amendment to bar legislators from seeking re-election if they have 10 or more absences that have not been excused by the Senate president or House speaker. Advocates have submitted 183,942 signatures; the requirement for a constitutional amendment is 149,360.

IN BRIEF

Another calf killed by wolves in Wallowa County

MINAM — Another confirmed case of a wolf killing livestock in Wallowa County was reported last week when a cattle producer in the Minam area found a 4-month-old, 350-pound calf dead, according to a report from the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife.

The calf was found Monday, June 27, when the rancher was distributing salt in a partially timbered 6,000-acre private pasture. The calf was believed to have died within 24 hours before the investigation.

Examination of the carcass led ODFW investigators to determine the wounds were consistent with wolf attacks on calves.

The packs known to frequent the area where the attack occurred include the Clark Creek pack, the Bear Creek pack or the Minam pack.

ODFW stated it will monitor for continued wolf activity in this area.

On June 17, the ODFW issued a permit to take four more Cheshnimmus pack wolves in the Crow Creek area after repeated depredations and the killing of two Cheshnimmus wolves under a previous kill permit. The current permit is good until July 17.
