Finding that they could not get sufficient heat from their gas main in the heater water for the restaurant, the White House proprietors Saturday called on gas company officials to remove a contrivance, sold as a "gas saver," from their meter. The instrument, peddled by a group of men thru out the city last week, was placed in a connection near the meter, cutting down the flow of gas 2 to 3 percent. The troublesome apparatus was removed and the usual efficiency of the gas service was revived. At the time these agents came to Salem the Capital Journal published a story about them, exposing their methods and the nature of the contrivance they had for sale. Due to this fact but few of them were sold here.

Word has been received that Mrs. N. A. Flegel and Mrs. Bailey, secretary of the state Congress of mothers, will be here Thursday to conduct the first eugenic test under the auspices of the Salem chapter of the congress of mothers. This is in no wise a contest, but merely a test of the child's mental and physical ability, and every mother is welcome to bring her children. It is hoped that not only the perfect children will be entered, but those who are not as healthy as they should be, as specialists in every line of work will examine the babies and advise the mothers. The Commercial club has offered the ladies the use of its auditorium, and the tests will take place there.

The freshman class of the university held its opening party of the year Friday night in the new pavilion at the fairgrounds.
