Davidson, director of the school band in the city, is asking all students from the fifth grammar grade to the senior high school, who have orchestra or band instruments at home, to take lessons preparatory to joining the band which will be formed in the near future. According to the musical instructors, more interest is being manifested in music this year than at any previous date, and the promise of an accomplished band is extraordinarily good.

Word has been received in Salem of the death of George W. Brown of Portland, formerly a resident of this city. He was the eldest son of the late Jack Brown, and a brother of Mrs. Andrew C. Brey and Al Brown. Mr. Brown, a printer by trade, was at one time employed in the offices of the Willamette Farmer, the leading agricultural organ on the Pacific coast in the '70s. He married Miss Lizzie Patterson of this city and moved to Portland thirty five years ago. He is survived by one son, Walter Brown.

In reply to a request of the industrial committee of the Commercial club for information of a suitable site for a Salem industry that had outgrown its bounds in its present location, several offers have been received. The committee Wednesday is considering a site on the Southern Pacific tracks. Several days ago the committee announced that unless a desirable home for the industry was received it would be forced to leave Salem.

The same natural element that gave Noah his promise placed in the sacred chronicles meant peace in the hills of town in Oregon a few years ago. N. G. Neal, a guest at the High hotel, can tell you all about the flood, and anything else about Hesper that you do not know.

The by-products obtained in the packing house industry may be divided into two classes—the edible and the inedible. The inedible constitute the external covering (hair, horns, hoofs and hides), some of the organs and the bones. In the manufacture of buttons, combs, knife handles and spatulas from the horns and hoofs of cattle and sheep and the hoofs of hogs, the waste resulting from the preparation of these articles was at one time thrown away, but it has been found that by treating such material with sulphuric acid the nitrogen which it contains becomes available as a fertilizer.

POST'S APPEARANCE HERE ADDS ARTISTIC TOUCH TO SCHEDULE

Guy Bates Post coming to the Grand opera house dignifies the dramatic season with the most extraordinary of variety shows. The theatre has to offer—and by way of information it is announced that this great artist will appear only for one night, Wednesday, November 12.
Poetry, so seldom found in a man and the rarest quality an artist possesses is as irresistible in every thing he does as the shadow following the golden rays of the sun.
As a child he used never to think of dramatic artists as any thing but far removed being. This great player, comes with just that appreciation, that esthetic something which when added to his magnificent, compelling acting stamps him great. That word is rightly withheld by our discerning critics until a man has proven his worth. Who can forget Post as "Omar" in Richard Walton Tully's exquisite "Omar the Tentmaker." Mr. Post's character drawings live because he invariably strikes the great chord of humanity. He is first and last permanent because he is the great human actor. Humanity dominates every character he has ever given us. The humanity of the artist and the humanity of the man. Humanity dominates everything he enters into. His great love for family, for his art, and the most unusual affection existing between Mr. Post and his distinguished author manager—Richard Walton Tully—all stamp him, to intimate as one once said of his best friend "to know him is to love him" and if ever a popular saying could be applied to an individual, that applies to Mr. Post. An accomplished musician, painter, linguist and writer, all coupled with his irrepressible gifts as an actor—it goes without saying—he is an indomitable worker. The most of every known human emotion. One moment portraying all we know as noble and good—the next next depicting the utmost depths of all civilization abhor—more interestingly intense than Jeckyl and Hyde—more gentle than Romeo—yet—with all—a modern manly man, as we know big men—great men—of today. Creating that within us, that something, in admiration—we are unable to put into words—a master—a genius—a man.

NEW INDUSTRY SEEKS LOCATION IN SALEM
Salem may be the seat of manufacture of a new vacuum street cleaner. The commercial club today received a communication from the inventor of such an apparatus in Portland, asking for information that will enable him to make connections with persons from whom he might get a plant site here.
The new street cleaner, said to be 100 per cent in operation, able to cut the cost of flushing streets one-fifth, and the only absolute way of keeping streets clean and dustless in freezing weather, is attracting much interest in the east. The inventor said that he has had business already lined up, and indicated that the establishment of his plant here would mean a great thing for the capital city.

WHAT BECOMES OF IRON ORE?
America's largest manufacturing industry is iron and steel. The pig iron recovered in smelting iron ore amounts to about 25 per cent of the raw materials. The equivalent of about 14 per cent is driven off by volatilization in the cooking of the coal. In the process of smelting a further 40 per cent escapes in gas, fume and dust, and the remaining 21 per cent represents the slag.
Experience in the Austrian government telegraph department has shown that zinc fluoride is a good preservative for telegraph poles. A partial application is effective if complete impregnation of the wood is not desired.

RAILS ACROSS AUSTRALIA
It is now possible to make a continuous railroad journey from Perth, Western Australia, to Brisbane, Queensland, a distance of 3825 miles.

A decree, authorizing the adoption by Philip L. Aspinwall and his wife, Helen Edith Aspinwall, of Norma Adair Tzack, a baby girl born to Grace Tzack in Portland, September 22, 1919, was issued Wednesday by County Judge Bushey. Mr. and Mrs. Aspinwall adopted the child that they might see her heir to their property. They changed the child's name to Eleanor Edith Aspinwall.

Aditorial.—Comparisons:
How often you see an advertisement reading, "We ask you to compare ours with others." What does "comparison" really mean? It means, "To make one the measure of another."
Now comparisons are not always in Quality, Workmanship and Finish to a garment, although these elements are vital—but, you must take YARDAGE into account when comparing Ready-made Merchandise. It is immaterial whether the garment under comparison be made of percale, gingham or broadcloth, the yardage used in its construction is an item that must be accounted in the expense.
For example, you may find a Coat, Suit, Gown, or Shirt made of a certain quality and pattern of material, most easily identified and wonder where the difference, but, if you would compare yardage you would find one garment carrying 1-2 to 2 1-2 yards more material than the other, and hence in its full and generous cut, having individuality, looking and fitting better in every way. Comparison in merchandise must include QUALITY, WORKMANSHIP, FINISH and YARDAGE. These are the factors that shape our decisions, and guide us in buying and explains the full meaning of our slogan, "Good Goods," and why "You can Always do Better at MEYERS."
