

$45,000 IS TOTAL OF SUBSCRIPTIONS TO LAUSANNE FUND

The subscription to Lausanne hall have reached $45,000 but as yet no final step has been taken to commence construction. Prof. Richards, secretary of education, tarried at school long enough this week to announce $2000 in subscriptions from four Pendleton donors. Dr. Doney also announced a $5000 subscription from a Eugene woman.

At present there are only $6000 in actual cash available, but this can easily be raised to fifteen thousand any time the committees concerned vote to start construction. Dr. Doney asserted yesterday. Most of the pledges to the hall fund have been made to the effect that half the subscription is to be paid when the subscription fund reaches the $30,000 mark and the other half when the construction of the second story is commenced. Although the building and executive committee have not yet voted to begin the work, Dr. Doney feels certain that the foundation will be laid this winter. The probable cost of the new structure is now rated at eighty thousand dollars.

CHURCHES ASKED TO ASSIST FUND DRIVE

John Medler, chairman of the Des Moines conference committee at Willamette announced yesterday that $295 of the needed $475 had been subscribed. The students will go before the Methodist churches of the city Sunday in an attempt to reach the high water mark at once. Medler will present the matter to Leslie M. E. church, while Orville C. Miller will make the appeal to the Jason Lee Wesleyans. The subject will not be put before the First M. E. church this Sunday on account of the communion services being held there tomorrow.

To assist in the financial campaign, Professor Della Crowder Miller, head of the public speaking department, has decided to make a nominal charge at her recitals, and to turn this money over to the Des Moines committee. The first recital by the dramatic department will be within a week or two, and will be followed by weekly recitals by the department. These programs have always been free in the past and will be henceforth so soon as the $475 are raised.

The committee yesterday chose Prof. Florian Von Eschen as the faculty delegate to the convention.

He has not finally accepted the proffer. The five student delegates will not be named for a few days.

Members of the student body at large pledged $253 last Monday. A friend of the school subscribed ten dollars Tuesday. Wednesday the men's literary societies pledged as follows: Christophilans, five dollars; Philodorian, five dollars; Websterians, ten dollars. Friday the three women's societies subscribed five dollars each.

STAR IN "OMAR THE TENTMAKER" RETURNS TO COAST AS LEAD IN "THE MASQUERADER"

The international preeminent position of Guy Bates Post makes his engagement at the Grand, November 12, the most important event of the theatrical year. By reason of his art, devotion to the high ideals of the stage and we should not use the word bestowed, for it has been the never ending effort, the untiring, endless, never faltering studious application, that has placed Mr. Post at the head and front of his chosen profession. To miss Mr. Post's performance of his dual role in "The Masquerader" is to miss the epitome of combined art and stagecraft, for his worthy and well known manager, Richard Walton Tully, has brought every lever known to the producers art and craftsmanship to bear in making the production perfection, from a mechanical, electrical, equipment and musical standpoint.

Roosevelt day was observed in all the schools of the city Monday, with literary programs and addresses, and an effort made by the students to do their bit toward making the drive for funds for the Roosevelt memorial, a success in Salem. Englewood school contributed $2.65; Grant junior high, $3; Richmond, whose drive has not yet closed has turned in $9; Washington junior high, $1.25; the elementary departments of Lincoln junior high raised nearly $17. The other schools, while recognizing the day with programs, contributed no money, except in the case of the Garfield school, where it was impossible to ascertain the exact amount. In the Washington junior high, Frances Willard shared honors with Theodore Roosevelt on the program.

For the theft of a pump and some iron pipe from a building at Junction City, Justice Wells of Eugene sentenced Guy King to six months in the county jail.

REGULATIONS FOR IRRIGATION BOND CONTROL DRAFTED

Regulations governing the state treasurer in the issuance of bonds to cover the payment of interest due January 1, 1920, on the bonds of Warm Springs and Ochoeco irrigation projects were drafted at a meeting Thursday of a commission created for the purpose. The commission is composed of George M. Brown, attorney general; Will H. Bennett, state superintendent of banks, and Percy A. Cupper, state engineer and was created by articles XL-b of the constitution.

Bonds issued by the Warm Springs project total $1,350,000 and those of the Ochoeco project $1,250,000. An agreement has been entered into by the commission with the irrigation district to pay the interest accruing on their bonds for two years and the district in turn have issued certificates on indebtedness covering the amount and have deposited the certificate with State Treasurer Hoff. The irrigation districts have also advanced to the state treasurer the interest on the state bonds for the first 18 months. State Treasurer Hoff will issue state bonds to the amount of $75,750 to cover the semi-annual interest due on the districts' bonds January 1. Advertisements are being prepared calling for bids on such bonds.
