

LABOR COUNCIL WELL PLEASED WITH RESULT

Members of the Central Labor Council state that the motion to oust the council's representative from the mediation board was not based upon dissatisfaction over the settlement of the Spaulding strike, but because the representatives were regarded as unsatisfactory to organized labor. The following statement was submitted for publication:

"To the Editor:—The statement in Saturday's Capital Journal as to the Central Labor Council being dissatisfied with the settlement with the Spaulding Logging company is misleading.

"The Central Labor Council is made up of representatives of all organized unions in Salem and said council is perfectly satisfied with the logging company's final agreement.

KEEP ACCOUNTS

Farming is a business the same as banking or running a mercantile establishment. There are products to be sold and articles to be bought. The keeping of a record of these and determining the relation of the output to the income are important considerations on every farm. The farmer should know what his income is and just how he is disposing of it. He can know this only by keeping books and the first of the new year is the proper time to begin.
