HOUSE COMMITTEE REPORTS MEASURE TO TURN ROADS BACK

Washington, Nov. 10.—The house interstate commerce committee today favorably reported the Esch railroad bill returning the roads to private hands.

The majority report of the senate interstate commerce committee on the Cummins bill was also laid before the upper legislative body.

The report on the Esch bill condemns the Plumb plan as "radical" and "impossible." The report also rejects the provision of the Cummins bill recommending a transportation board.

Such a body "in all probability would be subject to political influence even more than is the present interstate commerce commission," the house report says.

"In place of the anti-strike feature of the Cummins bill, the Esch bill proposes a board of arbitration of disputes between railroad managers and employees and gives unions the right to sue each other for damages rising out of a strike.

"It is true that many of the recently organized unions among the railroad employees, with little or no experience in the ranks of organized labor, have not felt the binding effect of contract obligations or been scrupulously in this connection as the members of the older organizations, represented by the four brotherhoods," the report says. "Nevertheless, the newer organizations should submit to the discipline prescribed by their own rules and regulations."

WAR VETERANS OPEN SESSION AT CONVENTION

pressing on the delegates that they are here for serious business and not for pleasure. The legion officials, however, urged veterans to accept the hospitality of Minneapolis citizens and welfare bodies and to enjoy the varied social features provided.

A monster parade for tomorrow has been planned. Veterans of other wars will participate as will prominent Minneapolis and St. Paul citizens. Governor Burnquist will welcome the members on behalf of Minnesota and the Twin Cities. Speeches also will be made by city officials.

Reduced rates were given delegates by the railroad administration. Return trips are good in some cases until November 24 and scores of delegates have expressed their intention to visit adjoining states and to go to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and many other cities in the mid-west corn and wheat belt.

First business of the convention, after examination of credentials, is to take up state organization reports and to submit recommendations and resolutions of state branches and individual posts. These many and varied suggestions of policy will be "boiled down" to a general report by the committee on resolutions and will be voted on by the assembled delegates as the expression of the sentiment of the convention.

Various state and city delegations have already begun campaigns to land the next national convention. San Francisco's delegation will likely be strong contenders. They have already a drive to land the meeting. Among other cities that will ask for the convention, and will make hot fights for it, are Chicago, New York, Boston, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Omaha, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville, Atlanta, New Orleans, Seattle and Los Angeles.
