Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 15.--A definite proposal by the Tacoma Metal Trades for calling off the strike in the Todd Shipyards, which has been in effect since October 1, was before Secretary of Labor Wilson and President C. W. Wiley of the Todd plant for action today.

The proposal, contained in telegrams to Wilson and Wiley, is for all shipyard workers to return to their former positions immediately at the same wages and conditions as existed before October 1, the new wage increase agreement to be held in abeyance with the understanding that it be referred to the United States department of labor for final decision.

Bright Night Skies in England

The report of the Photographic Section of the British Astronomical Association of the year ending September 30, 1918, comments on the unusual amount of light in the sky during the nights of that period.

It has, says the report, been possible to read the face of a watch at all hours. The contrast of astronomical negative has been much reduced. This illumination was not due to searchlights, nor did it seem to be auroral; moreover lighting in towns has been much reduced, under war regulations, so the cause remains a mystery.
