

STIFFER GAMES ARE DEMANDED FOR "BIG THREE" TEAMS IN '20

By Henry L. Farrell
New York, Nov. 19.—"Pink tea" football schedules sing their swan song this year. Yale and Harvard students are insistent that the football managers get something worth while on the 1920 schedule to prepare their teams for the final big game.

Princeton played a stiff schedule that was a distinct departure from the usual easy marks taken on by the "big three." The Tigers believe it was the experience gained in the game with Lafayette, Colgate and West Virginia that enabled a green team to tie Harvard and beat Yale.

If Harvard had bucked some hard games early in the season a different tale might have come from the Palmer stadium at Princeton. And if Yale had not chosen supposedly "sure win" games in making up the early season's card, the Blue certainly would have made a better showing against the Tigers.

Permits Grant Water for Arid Malheur Land

Permits covering the appropriation of 540 second feet of water from the Middle Fork of the Malheur river and for the storage of 200,000 acre feet of water in the Warm Springs reservoir for the irrigation of 37,561 acres of land in Malheur county was granted Tuesday to the Warm Springs irrigation district by State Engineer Percy A. Copper.

The waters of the Middle Fork of the Malheur were withdrawn from appropriation by the state of April 8, 1914, for the benefit of the Malheur project was jointly investigated by the state engineer and the United States reclamation service. This investigation cost the state and federal governments $19,459 which amount has been returned to the state and reclamation service and the water rights that were withdrawn have been transferred to the Warm Springs irrigation district in accordance with the order of the state water board.

Reservoir Is Built.
A reservoir for the storage of this water has already been constructed by the Warm Springs district at a cost of approximately $700,000 and the irrigation system has been constructed at an approximate cost of an additional $650,000. This work has been done under the direction of John H. Lewis, former state engineer, and the works have practically been completed and it is expected that water will be available for irrigation next season.

Application for permission to appropriate water from an unnamed creek was filed Tuesday by C. A. McDonald of Blaine who desires the water for irrigation purposes.
Marjory J. Kuhne, Carl F. Kuhne and William McKennie of Juntura have filed application for permission to construct a small reservoir and for the appropriation of water for the irrigation of 169 acres in Malheur county.

LA GRAND WITHOUT I.W.W. TROUBLES IS CLAIM OF VISITOR

"We have no I. W. W. troubles in La Grande these days because we have no I. W. W. in our midst," explained Geo. W. Cochran of La Grande, state water superintendent, who is here attending a meeting of the state water board.

"The people of a La Grande have found it necessary on several occasions in the past to give consideration to the presence of I. W. W. temporarily sojourning in our city but we have always attended to making the sojourn as temporary as possible. A couple of years ago a meeting of the citizens was held to discuss ways and means of ridding the community of about a dozen of these characters who had liked the looks of our city well enough to linger a little longer than we thought necessary. The subjects of the discussion got wind of the meeting somehow or other and, evidently fearing harsh treatment, applied to the police for a place to spend the night under the protection of arm of the law. They were permitted to sleep in the city jail and the next morning were placed aboard an outbound freight. That's the only successful way to handle the menace. If no community would tolerate the presence of the 'reds' they would soon be eliminated for want of a place in which to light long enough to concoct their nefarious scheme. And there is absolutely no reason for any toleration of their presence in any American community—especially after this Centralia outrage."

HINDENBERG GAVE APPROVAL TO U-BOAT WARFARE, HE ADMITS

By Carl D. Groat
(United Press staff correspondent)
Berlin, Nov. 18.—Germany's unrestricted U-boat campaign was approved by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff because it was "necessary to prevent Germany's soldiers from being killed by American munitions and Germanys women and children from being starved by the entente blockade," the field marshal today told the reichstag committee investigating the war.

Delay Explained
Germany would have declared unrestricted undersea warfare sooner, Ludendorff declared before the committee, had she not feared Great Britain would use it as a lever to force Holland and Denmark to declare war upon Germany. The government feared attacks from these two small countries particularly because troops were not available to stave off new attacks, Ludendorff said.

The proportionate strength of Germany and the allies was unfavorable to German arms from the start of the war, Von Hindenburg said, yet Germany would have won, he declared, had she been able to bring about the same cooperation between all elements that Great Britain and France did.

Says War Not Sought
Germany did not want war, Von Hindenburg declared. Neither the people, the kaiser, the government nor the general staff desired armed conflict, he said. The general staff, particularly, he asserted, was fully aware of the strength of the entente. If it urged preparation for war it was only because it considered that its duty to the nation, he declared.

"Had there been solid cooperation between the army and the home land, however, we would have been victorious," Von Hindenburg said. "Party interests led to the breaking of the 'will to victory,'" he added.
Rumors of demonstrations by nationalists and communists led the government to place guards along Von Hindenburg's route to the reichstag building. No disorders occurred, however. Some members of the Lutzor corps were arrested in front of Von Hindenburg's home for demonstrating there yesterday.

Mixed Signals Responsible For Hayney's Death. Report

Centralia, Wash., Nov. 18.—John Haney, member of the posse which sought fugitive I. W. W. who were believed to be in the Hannaford section Saturday, lost his life due to "fault on his part to answer signals which had been agreed upon by the posse and which were properly given."
This is the unanimous verdict which the jury rendered here Tuesday evening after Coroner Livingstone had conducted an inquest.
