EXIDE" plates represent the last word in starting battery plate construction. The finely cast grids, their compactness, and the uniform pasting of chemically correct material give to them strength, stability and durability that is unique in battery plate building.

The patented "EXIDE" cell cover prevents impurities from entering the cell and leaves no room for the collection of moisture. The non-flooding filling plug, an ingenious device, automatically eliminates corrosion of metal parts and rotting of the Lead coated steel handles are sunk into the "EX-IDE" case and are firmly anchored in place. They cannot be pulled out and do not project beyond the ends of the case to increase the over-all length of the battery.

"EXIDE" separators e readily distinguished by their toughness and body. They are made of a selected quality of hard and durable wood subjected to a specially developed treating" process which eliminates elements injurious to the battery, and insures unequalled service

The "EXIDE" intercell connectors are especially heavy, their ample cross section insuring a liberal carrying capacity at high discharge rates required in starting battery service. The intercell connectors fit snugly on and are welded to the cell terminal posts, insuring a perfect mechanical and electrical connection.

The "EXIDE" battery is the original unit cell battery. Each cell is separately sealed-bulky compound is eliminated. This gives greater plate areahence more power---for a given unit of weight and size. It also permits the removal of any one cell, assuring quick and economical repairs when neces-
