Farmers Are Praised. During the war the farmer performed a vital and willing service to duction of his land he supplied the allies with the increased amounts of food necessary to keep their immense armies in the field. He indepensibly helped to win the war. But there is now scarcely lesned of increasing the production in food and the necessaries of life. I ask the congress to consider means of encouraging effort along these lines. The mportance of doing everything possibleto promote production along ecoto make rural life more attractive and healthful, is obvious.
