

SCHOOLS OF SALEM ATTRACT ATTENTION THROUGHOUT NATION

How the work of the public schools of Salem are attracting the attention of educational officials throughout the country is evidenced by an article appearing recently in the Christian Science Monitor, as follows:

"In solving the problems of using school buildings to their fullest capacity and employing all of the time of the pupils, some unusual features, particularly in connection with what is known as the Junior high school, are being satisfactorily introduced in the public school system of Salem, Oregon.

"The experiment, begun four years ago, has proved that the per capita cost of instruction has decreased; a lesser number of teachers are needed and there has been a saving in the building of schoolhouses. Besides, the school children have shown a greater interest in their variety of subjects and teachers.

"An increase of work for the pupils in the seventh and eighth grades has also furthered their educational interests. In case of failure the pupil repeats only the subject in which he failed.

"A more practical knowledge is also gained in the Junior high school by the introduction of departmental work, manual arts, domestic science, penmanship and specialized studies in music and drawing. It is in this way the per capita cost of instruction is decreased as teachers have been enabled to handle larger classes.

"Under the direction of City School Superintendent, John W. Todd, a short-course idea has also been established in the Junior high schools, and expansion of the work has been made possible by the elimination of the teaching of German. The short course idea divides the school day into eight periods of 45 minutes each, or from 9 to 4 o'clock. The school year is divided into three parts of 12 weeks each. The length of the course under this plan can therefore be either 12, 24 or 36 weeks.

"A practical manual training and domestic science department in the high school is also being worked out. During the past year the boys in the manual training classes have done $2,200 worth of business and classes of girls have turned in several hundred dollars as profits from their school cafeterias, thus putting these departments on a self-supporting basis.

"In the manual training division a practical carpenter and a machinist are employed by the school board and these men instruct the boys in school classes and take outside jobs with them. Besides mending broken auto axles for Salem residents, manufacturing machinery parts and doing mill work, these boys have remodeled a 12-room house during the past summer and fall. This house is being used to house local school teachers because of scarcity of dwelling places.

"A practical housekeeper has been put over the house and from her and domestic science teachers the girl pupils are learning cooking and sewing and completing the decorating in the rooms. As a result of this successful work, the Salem school board has bought a lot and $1200 worth of lumber and materials to encourage the pupils in their 1919-20 work. The pupils taking the practical course will construct a house and it is expected that the work will be completed before spring."

HEAVY SNOW CLOSES POLK SAW MILLS

Dallas, Dec. 10.—Dallas and Polk county residents opened their eyes this morning upon arising to find that the ground had been covered with a covering of snow during the night amounting to about 28 inches with the snow still falling. This is the heaviest snowfall in this part of the state in the past three years and is a great hindrance to the carrying on of all kinds of occupations. The logging camps in the county are unable to run and if the snow keeps up the rest of the day it will seriously effect the operation of sawmills.

All trains coming into and leaving Dallas this morning were late, the morning train to Salem requiring two locomotives to move the cars. Awnings in the business district which were left up last night collapsed owing to the heavy weight of snow and a few weak roofs about the city fell in.

The snowfall in the mountains west of Dallas is said to amount to several feet and ranchers living in the district are isolated with the exception of the use of the telephone.

The attendance of the Dallas schools this morning was cut down greatly on account of the snow and for awhile it was thought that the schools would have to be dismissed.

TODAY'S WATCHWORD —Sickness Prevention

The guiding inspiration of modern medical science is Sickness Prevention. As this idea has worked itself out, smallpox, cholera, yellow fever and other infectious diseases already have given way. And science has finally developed an effective agent against the plague which is the originating point of over 90% of disease.

That plague is constipation, and that agent Nujol.

The dangers of constipation are so widespread because by reducing the body's power of resistance through self-poisoning it makes it easier for any disease to develop. Nujol by relieving constipation prevents the absorption of the poisons which otherwise would be taken into the blood and infect the whole system.

Leading medical authorities agree that pills, salts, castor oil, etc., simply force and weaken the system.

Nujol softens the food waste and encourages the intestinal muscles to act naturally.

Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

For available health booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger"—free, write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York.

Warning: Nujol is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark, as shown here. Beware of products represented as for "the cure at night". Two new bottles from substitution.
