With the Salem slough frozen over, children, and grown-ups who are still young enough for that kind of sport, are getting out their skates as a preparedness measure in case it freezes hard enough for ice skating. M

On account of the extreme cold weather, Sunday school and church services will be omitted for the day at the Presbyterian church.

Dr. S. C. Stone can be found at Tyler's drug store, 157 South Commercial street. 295*

The Public Library will not open at all tomorrow. It will close this evening at six o'clock, and continue doing so until the weather moderates.

There will be no dance at Auburn hall tonight on account of snow and cold weather. 295*

The unprecedented weather conditions have caused the Spaulding mill to close down, and it has remained idle since the second day of the storm. It is expected, however, that operations will be resumed in the immediate future.

Velocipedes just received. Come early, the supply is limited. Lloyd E. Ramsden, Court St. 295*

The Capital Journal appreciates the efforts of Mr. Lavalleur of the People's Furniture Store at 271 North Commercial street, for his efforts in supplying the Journal with gasoline burners for the linotype machines.

Cherlinavsky Bros. are well known musical artists who have toured Europe, Canada and America. 295*

Evidence in the case of Mike Parsagian against his brother, Paul, Armenians, has been taken under advisement by Judge Unruh, and a decision probably won't be rendered until next week. The trial was held in Judge Unruh's court yesterday afternoon. Paul is accused by his brother of assaulting and beating him while he worked with a section gang near Oreville.

An icicle 60 feet long, three feet in diameter and weighing approximately three tons, is worrying the owners of the Oregon building, the icy fragment not only menacing the cornice work of the four story office building down which it extends, but is also threatening the safety of pedestrians. To insure safety to passers by that part of the street in the immediate vicinity of the giant stalactite has been barricaded.

Buy your tickets early for the Cherlinavsky, Dec. 16, 1919. 295*

The trial of Etta Wharton, brought by R. R. Ryan, to collect $100 alleged to be due on a lease, was postponed in Judge Unruh's court today. It was slated to begin at 10 o'clock this morning but Ryan is snow-bound out in the country and was unable to be on hand.

Remember to call at Grand Opera drug store for your tickets to the Cherlinavsky. 295*

Notwithstanding the fact that the Portland markets are boosting their prices on grain, the local market continues to be the same. According to D. A. White & Son, grains will not advance in price in Salem until it is a case of absolute necessity. In the meantime, however, the market remains firm, and patrons will be enabled to supply their needs at the old cost.

If you love violin music you will hear Cherlinavsky, Dec. 15, 1919. 295*

Mr. and Mrs. Leland W. Waters will be the guests over the week end of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Blake, at their country home, "Willow Lake", north of Salem.

In order to make the work for the rural mail carriers as easy as possible and to do away with a great deal of delay which is otherwise necessitated, persons living on rural routes are requested to shovel the snow from around their mail boxes.

Alleging that during the entire period of their married life her husband has been subject to fits of moroseness, and sullenness; that he has without speaking to her; has called her vile names and epithets; has wrongfully accused her of squandering money and running the household in an extravagant manner; and hold in the presence that by acting thus in the presence of her friends and acquaintances has caused her much mental anguish and humiliation, Mrs. Christy Ackley yesterday filed suit for divorce from her husband, John Ackley. Aside from the above mentioned allegations, Mrs. Ackley mentioned a condition of resigning from a good position when she received $10,000 and has succeeded in squandering the greater portion of the money so that only a small amount remains. She asks the custody of a minor child, governor took the oath of office, and since that time there has been some material changes for the better. The people of our state are tired and disgusted of a maudlin policy that has served only to encourage crime, and retard it. Prosecutors and all other law enforcing officers feel the iniquitous results of such a system, detrimental to the best interests of society, order and law enforcement. It is time a change is made. The people demand it. We would be cowards to shirk the responsibility. It is our duty to come out unqualifiedly for drastic changes in the parole system. I for one, am unqualifiedly on record for the restoration of capital punishment and equally strong is my belief that the next session of the legislature should be opportunely by a committee representing this body to either abolish the indeterminate sentence or restore the provisions of the 1917 law.

Due to the absence of George McCluskey, district attorney for Wasco county, the topic, "County tax foreclosures" was presented by L. A. Lilequist, formerly district attorney for Coos county, but now acting as special deputy to Attorney General Brown.

Attorneys present at the morning session were: L. L. Ray, Lane county; Max Gehlhar, Marion; W. M. Evans, Clatsop; Ed L. Pieschel, Polk; S. E. Notson, Morrow; R. W. Swanger, Malheur; and George H. Neuner of Douglas county.

Plans to visit state institutions were cancelled by the prosecutors who adjourned at 1:30 p. m. in order to take the day trains leaving Salem this afternoon.

LABOR FRAMING ITS DECLARATION TODAY

Washington, Dec. 13.—Reorganization of the policies of organized labor was undertaken at a series of conferences beginning here today under the direction of President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

Farmers and leaders from all big unions and the four railroad brotherhoods were on hand.

"The conference will issue a public statement giving notice of the attitude of labor toward present industrial issues," said Matthew Woll, vice president of the A. F. of L.

The program includes discussion of the injunction issue, the right to strike and anti-strike legislation in several bills now pending before congress.

More than 200 union presidents and secretaries were expected. The conferences may last a week, officials said today.

San Francisco, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Emily Williams today filed suit for divorce against George C. Williams, a clerk. Among the allegations was that Williams admitted the graceful limbs of other women but never referred to those of his wife.
