

NEEDHAM DOESN'T WANT JOB AGAIN 3 AFTER BADGE

Sheriff W. L. Needham announced Saturday that he would not be candidate to succeed himself at the May primaries, despite the fact that many of his friends have urged him to run for a third term in office. This action is in keeping with the policy followed by each of the four sheriffs who preceded Needham.

Sheriff Needham's term of office expires January 1, 1920, at which time he will have completed nearly 14 years of service as a deputy under Harry Minto and as first deputy under William Beck and as sheriff. Sheriff Needham was elected January 1, 1915, and re-elected January 1, 1918. While sheriff the routine office work was greatly augmented by the war for the most part by alien enemy control and by draft board work all of which he had connection with.

County Physician W. H. Byrd, Clerk E. G. Raver and Sheriff Needham composed the Marion county draft board which examined 2529 men as possible draft number of the class "17-18."

Possibilities candidates for the job are Oscar Bower, present first deputy; Grover Todd of Woodburn and Perry M. Varney, chief of Salem police.

The Turner Tribune and the Stayton Mail have each carried recent articles lauding Chief Varney and naming him as a candidate. Varney announced his candidacy some time ago.

Captain Grover Todd of Woodburn has been mentioned being interested in the developments concerning candidates, but the Woodburn man has not made definite announcement.

Deputy Sheriff Oscar Bower is held a strong candidate for the position.

The banquet will be held in the armory, which has been elaborately decorated. It will begin at seven o'clock.

A select orchestra, led by Oscar Neidhammer, will play during the evening.

CONCERNING MUSIC

By C. A. DAVIDSON
(Director of Music for Salem Schools)

It was a treat to attend the concert by Tetrazzini last Monday evening at Portland.

She sang in the Hippodrome in New York to a packed house and hundreds were turned away. It was the same in Los Angeles and San Francisco. In Portland the few seats available could almost be counted on the fingers of two hands.

After the customary half-hour's wait the pianist appeared and played two solo very artistically. They were not brilliant and neither did he attempt anything brilliant during the evening. (In fact the whole concert took on the nature of an artistic program rather than one of brilliant fireworks.) But as an accompanist he was far excellence. And a good accompanist is almost as rare as a good soloist. His touch and interpretation were beautiful. And then, after all, it is part of the game to "play up the show" by contrasting her with the rest of the company.

The violinist, Mayra Wadler, is a fine artist of the first rank. He too excellent in delicate shading rather than in dynamics. Other points of superiority were his smooth bowing, clean phrasing and faultless intonation. One strain in harmonica reminded one of Elman in the Drift serenade. He had a voice of wonderfully sweet tone, evidently one of the old masters'. Another thing noticeable was that he used a wire. It is surprising how rapidly violinists are taking to the wire. Maud Powell has always used it, and Jacques Thibault and the Boston Symphony concert master and many, many others. The smooth vibrato which he played quite slowly as well as rapidly was always under perfect control and never in the least nervous. The most brilliant number was Helge Kull of Husky and it was during this number that the A string snapped. The applause was incessant and an encore was granted. It was then that I observed how truly good music goes to the hearts of the people. The vast crowds were uporous and insistent in their demand for another encore.
