thoroughly explained. At 10:45 a. m. Professor Gilmore of the department of farm mechanics, spoke on "Power Farming." The afternoon session opened at 1:30 with a lecture on "Tractor Fuel" by R. O. Spelling, Madison county manager for Associated Oil. W. G. Munro closed the course at 3:30 p. m. with an address on lubrication. Mr. Munro is local manager for the Standard Oil.

The office of County Recorder Mildred Robertson Brooks, became "No Man's Land" Thursday, when C. R. Ellis resigned his position in that office in order to accept a better opportunity in clerical work. Mr. Ellis is a law student at Willamette university and has been employed in the county recorder's office during the past two months. Recorder Brooks' domain received the cognomen "No Man's Land" about three years ago, because of the fact that mere man, has been a rarity among the clerical forces employed there. Mrs. Brooks denies that there has been any employment discrimination against the masculine sex, but has observed that the feminine staff persists in individuality. Mrs. Brooks has now two assistants, Miss Helen Savage and Mrs. Dora Webb. The office is very busy despite the fact that this portion of the court house is being altered in order to make more commodious quarters for the recording department of county work.
