

DYMENT PREPARING COMPLETE RECORD OF 91ST FATALITIES

A detailed record of how and where each of some 15,000 men of the 91st division met their deaths on the battlefields of France and Belgium is soon to be put out by the Red Cross, according to Colin V. Dymont, executive head of the University of Oregon extension school in Portland, who was in Salem over Thursday night.

During the war Mr. Dymont served with the Red Cross in France and one of his big tasks was that of field searcher with the 91st. Soon after his return to this country he prepared a series of articles, which were published in a Portland paper, telling the details of the deaths of many northwest boys in action. This series embraced but about 150 cases and the record upon which Mr. Dymont is now working is an elaboration of the first series. As near as possible it will relate the details of the deaths of all of the men of 91st who were killed in action.

Due to the pressure of his work with the extension department in Portland and new duties he has undertaken in connection with the furtherance of the university's interests in the millage bill to be voted on at the coming election, Mr. Dymont has had to give up the classes in journalism which he was teaching on the Eugene campus.

Army Officer In Salem In Interest Of Contest

Lieutenant Colonel R. V. Venable, senior publicity officer of the Oregon recruiting district, arrived in Salem this morning. Colonel Venable has been unable to visit Salem before on account of the demands on his office made by the school essay contest, which has been taken up with such enthusiasm throughout the district that the requests for information thereupon have been met with difficulty. A supply of literature about the contest, and about "our new democratic peace time army," has now been furnished to every county superintendent of schools in the district, for distribution to the schools of his county, whether public, private or parochial. This supply is not large, but it is believed that every school in Oregon will have received all necessary information within a day or two. Further news about the school essay contest will appear in the columns of this paper from time to time.

Colonel Venable will make his headquarters at the army recruit station, 462 State street.

EAST IS MONEY MAD SAYS G. E. HALVORSEN

"The wild and woolly west is evidently a thing of the dim, distant past, but the east today is as wild as the west ever dared to be," said George E. Halvorsen Thursday, upon his return from a two weeks' sojourn in eastern states. As a result of observations during his eastern stay Mr. Halvorsen has decided that the west is not in it at all when it comes to reckless squandering. "To say that the entire section is money mad, is putting it mildly," he said.

In a short talk before members of the Elks club Thursday night, Mr. Halvorsen pointed out that "soap box agitator" of all kinds were laying hold upon the unrestful state of affairs in furthering propaganda.

While in Chicago, Mr. Halvorsen attended the Chicago automobile show and also visited the national truck show at that city. He said that the truck show was one of the finest exhibitions ever staged in that line. The national tractor exhibit at Minneapolis also attracted Mr. Halvorsen.

While in Chicago, Mr. Halvorsen visited various factories and ascertained that industry there was being over-loaded with orders.

From his observations at the factories, he thinks that Salem and vicinity will be fortunate if a fair ration of cars ordered are obtainable at the factory.

"I'm mighty glad to get back to Salem," said Mr. Halvorsen. "The longer I stayed, the more the conviction grew on me that the Willamette valley is 'God's country.'"
