

HIGHEST PRICE IS SOUGHT FOR BERRY CROP HERE THIS YEAR

The highest possible price will be sought by members of the Marion County Loganberry Growers association for their berries.

Berries from the 325 acres, representing the holdings of the members of the association, will be pooled and held until April 1, or after, when actual effort to sell will be made.

Salem canneries probably will be favored in the sale of the berries.

These are the most principal phases entering into the conference here Saturday afternoon of members of the association. The meeting was held in Commercial club, and was presided over by Bruce Cunningham, president.

"The scalp" of the Oregon Growers Co-operative association is not sought through the pooling of the crops, Mr. Cunningham said. This statement was made in reply to rumors of the purpose of the organization.

The bid of an Albany cannery of 12 cents a pound for the berries this season was discussed lightly at the conference.

Public Forum

To the Editor: I feel that you do not intend to do an injustice to the owner of the house referred to in an article with big type on first page of Thursday's Journal, headed: "Houses withdrawn from rental drive people from Salem."

The inference to be had from the article would be that because of a proposed advance of 25 percent the owner is profiteering, and that is not the fact in this case. I happen, as a real estate agent, to know the rental history of this property for the ten years I have been in the business.

I think the owner is unfortunate in owning the property for that period. The record would show that the average rental for the ten years do not net as much as the lowest interest paying liberty bond, and that at even the advance in rent proposed and later withdrawn in favor of selling the property, it would not pay over the average liberty bond rate.

Unwilling to retain the property and continue the state of affairs, the owner has decided to cash in and pay the obligations against it (seven per cent) and cease keeping up and maintaining the property and paying 30 per cent of the gross rental in taxes, besides the care and supervision of its rental, etc.

In there any wrong in that, or must he continue to hold the property for the accommodation of the people, if posing as philanthropist, he might be called on to do so. There has been quite a little said and published about profiteering on the part of the landlords. I doubt if there are any, if you will allow an investor 6 per cent on his investment above the proper allowances in handling the property, and surely it is reasonable that an investor should have what money it will rent for, grant that and who is the profiteer. The renters have been the profiteers for several years, and are not yet extinct even with advanced rent dates.

Lots of properties to my knowledge, have not paid over two percent net to the owners. Why did they allow it? Simply because they could not help themselves. It was either take what they could get or let the house stand empty.

Yours in the interest of
—FAIR PLAY.
