Hop Contracts Show Good Yard Returns

Contracts at 43 cents per pound for the 1926 and 1927 crops were filed with the county recorder Tuesday morning. Kin Way and F. Y. Russell contract the entire crop from a 42-acre yard near St. Paul to R. Williams and H. L. Hart.

At the usual estimated yield this involves the sale and transfer of about 40,000 pounds of hops for each of the yards named. This is the largest yard contract and best 1921 price recorded recently.

By the terms of the contract, $5000 is paid on the execution of the document, a like amount is to be paid by August 25, 1929, and the remaining sum upon delivery.

Similar payments will be made on the 1927 crop in that year. The contract specifies that the hops are to be of a certain grade.

Steam plowing was introduced in England in 1832, but never made great headway.
