

"BOYS AND BARBER SHOPS?" IS QUERY IN DIVORCE SUIT

"There is not a barber shop in the state where vulgar and obscene language in reference to women is not more or less in vogue." This was the statement made by William Yates of Silverton, who testified during the divorce proceedings of Edna Shockley against T. R. Shockley, Tuesday. Yates had been called to the stand by attorneys for Mrs. Shockley in an effort to substantiate evidence that Shockley had made remarks concerning women who passed his barber shop in Silverton. This charge had been denied by Shockley who claimed that he had worked hard in maintaining a home for his family and that "he did not step out at night, but stayed at home."

In cross-examining Yates who also is a barber, John McNary, attorney for Shockley, asked the witness how long he had been in the business. "Since I was about 14, was the reply. "Did you hear any 'obscene' talk at your age, while in barber shops?" asked McNary, "and did it 'ruin you'?"

The witness answered the first query in the affirmative, but denied that his regard for womanhood had been affected by the experience. This cross-examination had been aroused by a statement of the witness, that he was certain that Shockley's barber shop, or any shop, was a suitable place for the presence of a young boy. Evidence previously presented had shown that Glen Shockley, 13, had been permitted by his father to conduct a "shoe shine" stand in Shockley's shop.

Previous testimony submitted by Mrs. Shockley had contended that Shockley had excessively abused the conjugal relation and that on several occasions he had handled her roughly, matters coming to a crisis on December 18, 1913. Upon that date, Mrs. Shockley alleges that her spouse became enraged, blacked her eye and inflicted bruises and contusions upon various parts of her body.

Shockley denied charges of assault and alleged that his wife had been intimate with various other men.

Both parents claim the custody of the children, Dora, 15 and Glenn, 13, each contending that the other is an unfit person for such trust.

The case occupied nearly two days in the hearing before Judge Percy R. Kelly, who took the testimony under advisement.

Lloyd Rigdon To Be Candidate For County Coroner

Lloyd T. Rigdon, member of W. T. Rigdon & Son, undertakers, today filed his declaration of intention of being a candidate for the republican nomination for county coroner of Marion county, in the primary election, May 21. Mr. Rigdon has never been a candidate for or held any political office, except as a member of the Salem City council, which office he resigned early in 1913 to enter the service of Uncle Sam. Upon his return from the army he assumed active management of the undertaking establishment, and has conducted it since.

Lloyd Rigdon is a native of Marion county, attended the public schools and University in Salem, and is a graduate of the Capital Business College and the Cincinnati School of Embalming. He has been associated with his father in the undertaking business for ten years, and is eminently qualified for the position of coroner. He is 29 years old.

On his declaration of intention Mr. Rigdon states that he will "perform the duties incumbent upon the office in a straightforward and economical manner." He also claims to stand for "honest and faithful service; economical administration."

The office of coroner has been held in this county for 24 years by A. M. Clough of the Webb & Clough company.

An extensive "buy in Canada" campaign is now in progress in that country to combat the high rate of exchange charged on Canadian money in the United States.

Six Walter Scott's letters, to the number of 150 pages, were discovered recently in a San Francisco second-hand book store.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO COMMERCIALIZE ORCHARD BLOSSOMS

On some day between April 5 and 20, when blossom season is at its most gorgeous height in and around Salem, arms will be thrown wide to thousands of visitors and tourists, and excursions will be made to points around Salem where they may view the wonderful blossom fields. At the monthly open forum meeting of the Commercial club Wednesday evening Manager McCroskey was authorized, by a vote of the members, to name a committee to assist him, and take whatever steps are necessary to institute Blossom Day here.

Creation of a blossom day, and provisions of facilities to accommodate the many who will come here then, will be one of the "greatest advertising stunts Salem can do," Mr. McCroskey told the club. "It is an opportunity we cannot afford to miss."

King Bing C. B. Clancey, for the Cherrians, volunteered to provide autos for the visitors here during blossom season.

Plans the Cherrians are shaping for the entertainment of the thousands of Elks and Shriners who will visit this city this summer during their conventions in Portland were told by King Bing Clancey. The Cherrians' committee will meet with the Salem Auto Dealers association some time this week to further arrangements for an auto tourist camp ground, he said.

A committee, composed of W. C. Connor, Harley O. White and George E. Shaw, were selected to promote the Marion county poultry show here this spring.

Billboards, especially when they contain foreign advertising that is particularly painful to the civic eye, came in for a rap during the meeting. Discussion arose when it was said that Portland advertisers are arranging to place advertisements here in electric de luxe signs. What action the clubs should take in the matter was left in the hands of Chairman R. O. Snelling of the civic department.

Following the business meeting the club members were shown many beautiful art picture slides of flower scenes in and around Salem. The pictures, made and shown by A. C. Barber, state insurance commissioner, are exact color reproductions, and won hearty applause from the club members. Mr. Barber said that the taking of these pictures was his "hobby, one thing that every tired business man should have."

The Most Welcome Tire That Ever Came to Market

Men Who Appreciate Superlative Values Prefer The Brunswick

In every great tire factory, the chief question is: "How much can we give for the money?" And the product depends on the policy adopted.

Every man who has become acquainted with Brunswick Tires knows that Brunswick standards are again evident. This famous concern—noted as a leader in every line it entered since 1845—has once more proved that its policy is right.

A perfect tire is simply a matter of knowledge and standards and skill. No secrets nor patents prevent making an ideal tire.

But standards come first. For in tire making there is vast room for skimping, for subtle economies, for hidden shortcomings. Makers without the highest standards don't build high-grade tires.

The Brunswick organization of tire makers includes a brilliant staff of technical experts. Not a man among them has spent less than 20 years in handling rubber.

Each is a master of his craft. And the new ideas they bring to the attention of Brunswick directors receive sincere consideration.

Every proved betterment is adopted unanimously.

The Brunswick Tire is a combination of acknowledged features—plus Brunswick standards of manufacture.

The result is a super-tire, the like of which you have never known before. The kind of a tire you will gladly join in welcoming.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Try ONE Brunswick. We promise a surprise. And we feel certain that you will want ALL Brunswicks.

Then good tires will have a new meaning to you.
