CONFUCIOUS and the Cobbler Weather Is Bad. Confucious left a pair of shoes with a cobbler to be mended. When he went for them the shoes had not been touched. The cobbler's wife had thrown red pepper in his eyes, for reasons of her own, and the man could not see to work. So Confucious gave him a pair of glasses, his eyes were healed, and he fixed the shoes. Not only that, but a squint, which he had in the beginning was also corrected by the glasses. It is further related that his wife made a great disturbance over it. She had married a man with a squint, and now he had none! The Chinese sage recounting the story gauntly observes, in conclusion, that the cobbler continued to wear spectacles.
