

Interest Shown
In Deaconess
Hospital Growth

In endeavoring to find a solution to the critical hospital situation in Salem and vicinity, many people are inquiring as to what assurance that Deaconess Hospital association can give that their present plans will mature and that they will have a material increase in their present plans in time to take care of such sickness as may occur by the time of next fall, it was reported there today.

President F. B. Wedel, of the association, today was very optimistic and stated that there was not "the least doubt in the world" but that the first unit of the new hospital, a building 25 feet by 120 feet and accommodating 25 additional beds, would be ready for use and occupancy in the fall, and that this would be entirely in addition to the present plant of the association which will be continued as at present.

Basement Finished.

The basement of the new unit has been completed and the work done on it is pronounced by experts to be first class and as soon as weather conditions permit, the walls will be constructed and work rushed to finish the building as rapidly as possible. Donations for the purchase of the necessary supplies are coming in regularly and the management expresses the intention of doing everything possible to keep the work going right along and the canvass for funds is progressing in a very encouraging manner.

Mr. Wedel pointed out today that Salem people could well afford to liberally support this enterprise for not only is it bringing a necessary source of relief to sick and infirm people to this community, but it is also making a valuable acquisition to the capital city in the way of hospital equipment and the investment of funds that will entail the expenditure of much money here in the years to come and also make Salem a much more sightly and important city.

The Deaconess hospital association has been preparing for the present unit for a year and now have all the material on the ground and weather conditions permitting, with the necessary funds for the pay of labor, the work will proceed with all expedition.

Saner Business Administration
Is General's Plea

Toledo, Ohio, April 1.—Opening his Ohio campaign here today before a large audience in a theatre, Major General Leonard Wood said the country must return to a saner business basis and again think in millions instead of billions. He urged national economy, removal of taxation restraints on business and the spreading of the war debt over a longer period to the end that taxation may not be excessive and initiative strangled.

The fight between General Wood and United States Senator Warren G. Harding for preferential endorsement for the republican presidential nomination also the control of the Ohio delegation at the Chicago convention promises to be the hottest waged in any state. They are the only republican candidates entered in the primary which will be held April 27.

Laundry Case Nears End In Portland

Portland, Or., April 1.—The trial of Joseph Lundy, alleged I. W. W. charged with violating the state criminal syndicalism act, reached the argument stage today, the prosecution failing to secure the court's permission to introduce into the record the manifesto of the Third International of Moscow. Arguments were expected to occupy the entire day and the court's instructions to be given tomorrow.

One Man Killed,
Another Hurt In Poolroom Brawl

Portland, Or., April 1.—George Gornoff, is dead and William Skloff is badly wounded as the result of shooting in a downtown pool room here shortly after noon today. Sapo Sabloff is under arrest as the man who did the shooting. All of the men are Russians, and the police had not been able to learn definitely the cause of the tragedy, after examining witnesses for nearly an hour.

Armenian Drive Means Food For Starving Youth

Have you ever been hungry—genuinely, desperately, for want of food? Chances are that you have not. Very few of us have been, as a matter of fact, very few of us have ever been, for want of anybody in that direful condition known as starving, although we talk a good deal, loosely, about poverty and starvation "at our very doors," etc. Starvation, this is as legendary and mythical a thing in this particularly comfortable portion of comfortable North America as the bubonic plague, or the black death, and for that reason the horror and misery of the world's actual meaning does not take hold of us the way it should. We read that hundreds of thousands of little children are starving in Armenia, and we think "just another drive," with a half comic sigh, wondering what we ought to give, or what our neighbors intend to do, but "hundreds of thousands of starving children in Armenia" does not mean "just another drive" which you can ill afford to assist—it means thousands of human beings, little children, and in all respects, except good luck, just like yours, are suffering horrible tortures and dying like flies in the land where Christ was born. It means a tremendous pool of human suffering which the civilized world must, at any cost, dry up as soon as possible. For the "starving Armenians" is not a phrase or a slogan; they are a fact, becoming less numerous, more accusing to the conscience of the rest of the world which is permitting them to die.

Let us suppose, now, that in the next block there was a family you did not know, but you discovered that they were in dire want. The head of that family, let us say, unable to get work, the children unable to go to school for lack of clothing, and no bread left in the house to eat. You would not lose a moment in relieving their distress to the best of your personal ability, would you? You wouldn't calmly talk about "just another drive." You'd see that those folks got something to eat, those children go to school, and you'd find some way to get a job for the head of that family. If necessary, you would divide your own dinner with them, wouldn't you? If you are attempting to think of the Near East relief drive just as a more or less worthy charity, remind yourself that Armenia is that family in the next block, only a thousand times worse off. The head of that Armenian family is not merely out of work—he is dead—killed by the Turks with the most inhuman and and horrible of tortures. The children are not just out of school, because they have not clothes—the school has been burned, and the family has not had any clothes for five years. Some of the little children in that family have grown up without ever having a stitch of clothing to wear. The family is not down to bread as its last article of diet—it is down to sticks, grass and leaves, and naught little of that. A little bread would be a luxury that hundreds of thousands in the Near East have not known for years. In that family you are asked to help—death is a daily visitor. In a great many of these near eastern families some things more horrible than even death itself are not unfamiliar.

Chamberlain Goes

Washington, April 1.—Senator Chamberlain went to George Washington university hospital Wednesday for an operation for abscess of the ear. Decision for the operation was reached suddenly, friends not even knowing of the ailment. The operation is believed to be of minor importance.

Livesley Contracts
Lane County Hops

Eugene, Or., April 1.—T. A. Livesley and company of Salem have filed two contracts for the delivery of 22,000 pounds of hops raised this year. One contract, signed July 23, 1919, calls for the delivery of the 1920 crop at 30 cents a pound. The contract signed October 11, 1919, provides for a payment of 40 cents for the 1920 crop and 25 cents for the 1921 crop. Contracts signed early in this year call

Kitchen Burned
From Home; Fire
Is Fought Long

The kitchen on a residence at the corner of Summer and Madison streets was burned off, despite the efforts of city firemen, in a fire which began a short time after noon today. No one was at home when the fire began, and the name of the owner was not learned by firemen. The fire is believed to have started from an overheated stove, on which the residents had evidently been cooking dinner. When the firemen arrived the fire had gained such headway that they were fighting it 30 minutes before it could be extinguished. Two fire engines responded to the alarm, turned in by a neighbor. Damage will be about $100, it is said.

The fire department, at 11:55, also answered a call to the Royale Cafeteria, 469 State street. The restaurant was filled with smoke caused from a small fire in the basement of Kafury brothers store, which was put out before the department arrived.

story writer who makes his home at Philomath, Benton county. Stovall's opinion of the task before the state regulatory body is expressed in a letter relative to the controversy now being waged between the carriers and patrons of the Philomath Telephone company.

"I'm inclined to think that several months of the fuss being made over telephons here in the city of brotherly love is due to the ever-lasting desire of some folks to kick against everything that is offered in the way of public service," Stovall writes. "The main trouble is that we have been getting our phone service for nothing and when the price was raised then a howl went up."

Six More Give To Hospital Drive

The Salem General hospital campaign for $100,000 continued today without any marked degree of success, only six new donations being tabulated at headquarters up to two o'clock this afternoon. Five of these donations were far in excess of the scroll of honor figure.

Those who gave to the fund today

- are: William Gahlerdorf $200; H. A. Cuckner $25; Mrs. Isabel M. White and Miss Cora L. Prescott $25; T. L. Davidson $20; Otto F. Brandt $5.
- W. D. Wood of Hillsboro, a candidate for the republican nomination for secretary of state, spent a few hours in Salem Thursday. Mr. Wood was accompanied by C. D. Smith, also of Hillsboro.
- Census figures showing Milwaukee has grown 23.3 per cent need caused no alarm. They refer to population only, not to alcoholic content.—Memphis News-Scimitar.
