

Sale of Meyers Store Climax to Senior Partner

With the passing of the Meyers store under new management there comes a change in the career of one of Salem's well known and established merchants.

Meyers, the senior partner of the firm of H. W. & M. L. Meyers has spent many long years of active life in building up the business of the popular mercantile firm begun by his father 48 years ago.

It was as an apprentice in his father's store that Mr. Meyers started his business career. A few of the older Salem residents still remember the alert, attentive boy doing everything and anything that might need his attention in the then country store.

Mr. Meyers father believed that the future of industry can only be built on a foundation of business education. He was a pioneer in the heated competition of active business life and as they may have mastered from the ground up, every detail of their particular line of business endeavor.

Accordingly, the elder Mr. Meyers passed his young son in charge of the butter and egg department. Here the boy soon evidenced skill as an expert in classifying the various kinds of country butter as to quality. The baskets of eggs, brought by farmers to the store in exchange for merchandise, were also passed to the young man to assort and count.

A few years later we find Henry W. Meyers behind the counter fully commissioned as a salesman. When the Meyers store became established in the storehouse, known as the Old White Corner, at the intersection of Court and North Commercial streets, Mr. Meyers was promoted to the position of bookkeeper for the firm.

So successfully had the firm been raising young merchant acquainted himself in all matters previously entrusted to him that, in 1894, his father took him in as a partner under the firm name of J. W. Meyers & Son. This business relationship continued until 1918, when, through a change in the management, M. L. Meyers, a younger brother of H. W. Meyers, was taken into the partnership. The firm since then has been operating under the name of H. W. & M. L. Meyers.

The school life of Mr. Meyers was spent in the public schools in Salem. Later he attended Bishop Scott academy in Portland from which institution he graduated.

Mr. Meyers has been actively identified with all of the leading civic movements and benevolent undertakings in the city. He was one of the founders of the Business Men's association.

and. During the war he gave such time and earnest effort to the various war activities. As chairman of the Warrenton chapter of the Red Cross he rendered efficient and most commendable service.

Mr. Meyers at this time is contemplating an special life of work. He feels that, by reason of his long years of business activity, he is entitled to a period of relaxation. Accordingly, in a few days, Mr. and Mrs. Meyers will leave for the State on the coast, where they will try their skill at angling the gassy trout and enjoy the romantic solitude of life among the tall trees in that almost unexplored forest region.

Corner Cutters Prey Of Police

Carrying out their announced intention that cutting corners will not be dealt with leniently, police today arrested three motorists on this charge.

J. A. Mower, route 1, Salem was fined $5 for cutting a corner when halted before Police Judge Race at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Winifred Pettijohn, 145 North 14th street, was arrested for the same offense and is to answer to the court at 10 o'clock Monday.

W. E. McWhorter, 1149 Market street, also fell prey to Traffic Officer Moffitt and will be taken before Police Judge Race Monday morning to explain why he did not drive around the white circle at the corner of Capital and Market streets.

Watch Lights Of Be Nabbed, Edict

Operation of motor vehicles with lamps, lights at all, or glaring headlights will be severely dealt with if instructions issued by Chief of Police Welsh today to all officers are a criterion.

Chief Welsh, pointing out that complaints have been received at headquarters that motorists are driving without tail lights, front lights and with glaring headlights, today instructed all officers to arrest any one driving in this manner. These things are violations of city ordinances, he said, and will have to be observed.

Shrine Session Not To Be Delayed

Portland, Or., Apr. 2.—There is no possibility of a postponement of the imperial council session of the Shrine scheduled to be held in Portland June 23 to 25, according to a telegram received here today from W. Freeland Kendrick, imperial potentate, Philadelphia.

Kendrick's telegram was sent here in denial of a report, said to have originated in Indianapolis, that the Shrine convention would be postponed because of lack of Federal accommodations, due to need for the sleeping cars for the two big political conventions.

46 Arrests Made In March; Record Is Established

With 46 arrests appearing on the docket for March, the Salem police department has established a record not looked for many months. The regular monthly report of arrests was compiled by Chief of Police Welsh this morning. Compilation of figures in municipal court show that fines totaling $199 were received during last month, which Police Judge Race claims also to be a record.

The arrests for the month are divided as follows: traffic violations, 18; pool hall ordinance violations, 11; bad checks, 2; disorderly conduct and drunk, 8; interfering with an officer, 1; arrested for foreign office, 2; violation general ordinance, 1; runaway boy, 1; concealed weapons, 1. In February arrests totaled 17, and fines totaled $54, records show.
