Oregon Observations

Portland.—Senator McNary has announced that he will press strongly before the war department the claims of his constituents as regards the reduction in the number of airplanes for the Oregon forest patrol this summer.

Astoria.—J. Robert Chisholm, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Chisholm of this city, was drowned at Knappa Saturday night by falling overboard from a launch on which he was employed by the Big Creek Logging company.

Baker.—A landslide covered the Sumpter Valley railroad tracks for 100 feet 12 feet deep Saturday morning, six miles east of Austin. There was no through traffic to Prairie City, but trains ran from either side of the slide and passengers walked across.

Newport.—Mrs. J. H. H. Anderson and G. A. Schumacher of Newport, have been appointed on the executive committee of Oregon Hoover club, the appointments coming by telegraph from O. C. Leiter, state committee secretary.

Astoria.—The Astoria Amateur Wire less association, with E. P. Hawkins, president; Carl Josephson, vice-president; E. A. Smith, secretary and treasurer; and a charter membership of 15, reorganized April 1. The former organization was discontinued at the outbreak of the war.

Newberg.—Definite word has been given at St. Paul that the proposed market road, extending from Woodburn to Newberg, connecting up the east and west side Pacific highways, will be put to grade and gravel laid this season.

Baker.—Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Lee, totted for 20 years with one ambition—to buy a four or five acre ranch with their savings and settle down in comfort to spending their declining years. Last Monday they attained their goal. They loaded their household goods into a wagon at Huntington, where they had lived for the last 15 years, and started for Baker, near where they expected to make their home. Tuesday, just after they had eaten their noon meal at a camp three miles southeast of Weatherby, Mrs. Lee fell dead with heart failure.

Lebanon.—The body of Kenneth Coppick, who was drowned Wednesday morning in the South Santiam river while driving shingle bolts for the Super Shingle company, was found by Otto Powell. The body was lying near an island, about three miles below where it sank and about one-half mile above town.

Portland.—At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Oregon Pioneer association preliminary plans for the forty-fifth annual reunion were outlined. The reunion will take place on Thursday, July 1, in the auditorium, the change to a later date than usual being necessary on account of the demand for that building in the middle of June to accommodate the "strangers within our gates" at that time.

Lecture Recital Set For Tuesday

The lecture recital of Ralph I. Thomas, first number of the Williamette Lyceum course under the direction of Professor Orville Crowder-Miller, will be given in the First M. E. church at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. Mr. Thomas, who is a member of the graduating class in the dramatic work, is assisted by Miss Mary Notson, who will give several readings and also assist Mr. Thomas in the short play which constitutes the second half of the program. The first part is a lecture on American Authors, and will be freely interspersed by the interpretation of cuttings and readings from the authors discussed. The number is free, and as Mr. Thomas' ability is recognized throughout Salem, a large attendance is assured.

HOOVER UPON NATIONAL PROBLEMS

In the last issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Herbert Hoover discusses national problems, their cause and their cure, in a comprehensive manner. Scientifically stating his premises, he suggests solutions as an engineer rather than a politician, showing that he has a comprehensive knowledge of the vital problems of reconstruction enjoyed by few candidates.

Mr. Hoover makes clear that America must so order its life and industries that agricultural and industrial growth and development go forward together in order to create stable prosperity. The high cost of living, he declares, is "a temporary economic problem surrounded by high emotions" while the agricultural industry is "a permanent economic problem surrounded by many dangers" and he adds that "we are now entering our regular four year period of large promises to sufferers of all kinds."

Mr. Hoover declares that the high cost of living is due largely to inflation and shortage in the world supply, with speculation as an incident but not the cause.

Concerning agriculture Hoover declares that the farmers prices are fixed by world's wholesale prices which have small relation to his cost of production and rises or falls with the decrease or increase of the cost of marketing; that the two margins—between the farmer and the wholesaler on the one hand and the wholesaler and consumer on the other, are far greater in America than in any country of the world, and have grown abnormally during and since the war, except during the period of food control; that the decreases in price between the farmer and wholesaler, immediately affect the farmer, while increases are absorbed by the trader between, and the farmer gets but a lagging interest—and that an analysis of the margins show they can be constructively diminished, but the prosecution of profiteers will not accomplish it; that the problem must be solved if agriculture is to be maintained, and the balance between agriculture and general industry preserved to prevent dependence upon imported food.

"The development of our national life," states Hoover, "rests in the spirit of our farms and surrounds our villages. Industry's real market is with the farmer by the constant increase of his standard of living."

AN ORGY OF SPENDING.

Extravagance and wastefulness in the United States are apparently not curbed in the least by the high cost of living, for imports and luxuries are breaking all records, while the home-made non-essentials are enjoying the best possible market.

During the month of February, diamond importations at New York alone, totalled $9,044,350; fur imports totalled $8,187,996. Laces, feathers, velvets, plushes and other rich fabrics mounted into the millions, while over $30,000,000 worth of silk and silk garments were received. Art works passed the $2,000,000 mark, while manufactured jewelry and ornaments reached fabulous amounts.

Every quarter of the globe contributed its quota to gratify the vanities and follies of the newly rich in America, and the figures show an orgy of spending without parallel since the decadent days of the dying Roman Empire. To this unlimited market, the ruined palaces of European nobility, as well as the straw huts of the Congo savages are contributing their quota, in the futile effort to satisfy the profiteer's appetite for luxuries.

It seldom falls to the lot of a young man to be the unanimous choice of the people of his district for public office, but such seems to be the fortunate fate of John H. Carson, who will probably be the next district attorney of Marion county, as he is without opposition either at the primaries or the election. Mr. Carson, one of the brightest and ablest of Salem's attorneys has the endorsement of his brother lawyers, the loyal support of the ex-service men and the confidence of the general public, and will make a capable prosecutor.

Rippling Rhymes

THE SPRING CHORE.

Spring is brightening the valleys, that were lately brown and gray, and it's time to clean the alleys, carting all the trash away; all the cast-off shoes and bonnets, and the cat that reached its end, and the punk rejected sonnets that the local poet penned. Spring is hinting now of roses, and we should to duty rise, for old trash offends our noses, and it's painful to the eyes. Spring is whispering of lilies, whispering in every breeze; and that town imparts the willies which no springtime clean-up sees. There is litter by your stable, there's a dead cow by your door; soil, as hard as you are able, that they may be there no more. For such things insult our senses, and they aggravate and vex; and we ought to paint our fences, shave ourselves, and wash our necks. All the world is bright and sunny, shining till it seems like new; and I think it mighty funny if we are not shining too. Bear away that dead Tabby, all the truck of yesteryear; clean up, for the town that's shabby is an eyesore to the ear.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

By the Noted Author IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON

JOHN SEES A NEW LIGHT. Before Hannah reached me, they told me afterward, I had become unconscious and I was wretchedly spacial all the details of my mother's funeral. My first conscious moment came the next evening when I heard John, Alice and the doctor talking. "I do not quite understand," said John, "why my wife is so apt to collapse on the slightest provocation." "Do you call what she has just passed through a 'slight provocation'?" asked Alice sarcastically. "No," answered John, more meekly than I had ever heard him speak, "but up until the motor accident and the loss of her baby she has always seemed in such radiant health." "Not a Quick Recovery." "A woman does not recover quickly from shocks like that," said the old doctor; "in fact, I have known it to leave some of them invalids for life." "Surely, you have not the idea that Katherine will be left in such a condition." "No, sir, but I do think that she should be left here in this quiet place until she has recovered." "Oh, I am sorry," exclaimed Alton and John simultaneously. "You see," continued John, "I had hoped to take her home, perhaps with a nurse, at the end of the week." "That would be madness," emphatically spoke the doctor. "If you should do such a thing as that I would not answer for her reason or her life." I felt myself smiling, for I could not believe that I was in the dangerous condition the doctor described. Inwardly I was glad of his decision that I remain in the little old home place.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES

PLANNING A JOURNEY. Major Monkey asked him what he meant. And it surprised him to learn that all winter long deep snow lay upon the ground, and cold winds blew, and fierce storms often raged. Though it was a hot summer's day, Major Monkey shivered at the mere mention of such things. And he pulled his red cap further down upon his head. "If that's the case," he said, "I certainly don't want to spend the winters here. * * * I don't see how you manage to live through them."

"It's about a thousand miles," Jolly Robin told him. they did, no doubt they thought that he had so many eggs that he wouldn't mind losing a few now and then. So it happened that Major Monkey found everybody most agreeable—except old Mr. Crow, who never felt the same toward him again. But Major Monkey did not let Mr. Crow's gruffness trouble him. He had so many other cronies that he frequently remarked that he had never spent a pleasanter summer. "I've decided," he told Jolly Robin one day, when he stopped in the orchard to eat an apple—"I've decided to stay right here in Pleasant Valley for the rest of my life." "My gracious!" Jolly Robin exclaimed. "Then you don't mind cold weather."

not forgive, and that is Karl Shepard. You know I consider he has nearly broken up my home, and sometimes I think you aided and abetted him, Alice."

Very Much in Love. "I have," was Alice's serene reply, "and it is probably no news to you, John, that Karl Shepard is very much in love with your wife, and I think he would make her a much better husband than you do."

"Alice, does any woman think there are any good husbands?" John asked angrily. "Yes, a few, and I have one of them," answered Alice suavely. "But you and Tom never acted as though you were greatly in love with each other."

"No, and we never acted as though we hated each other. We are just pals, old dear, just pals." "Perhaps that is the secret," said John slowly, as he came toward my bed.

House-To-House Drive To Finish Fund Is Planned

A house-to-house campaign, handled by the Salem Women's Club, to complete the Salem General Hospital fund of $100,000, the deficit of which was said today to be less than $15,000, was decided upon by the hospital board at its meeting Saturday afternoon. T. B. Kay was appointed to confer with the women's club, and arrange details with them for conducting the campaign. At the beginning of the campaign the women's club displayed a considerable interest in the movement, and it is believed that they will take a hold of the campaign now, and carry it to a successful conclusion.

William McGilchrist, Jr., for more than a month manager of the Salem General Hospital campaign, Saturday was permitted his resignation by the hospital board. Mr. McGilchrist was permitted a leave of 30 days from his duties with the Phee company to manage the campaign. When the 30 days were ended, he was appointed for 30 more, but the rush of business in his office prevented his further participation with the campaign. The hospital board felt that with the

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin is on Fire. There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source. The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S. for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today, and you will see results from the right treatment. Write for advice. The After Effects of Pneumonia

This is No. 2 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's Vapo-Rub may be of value in this condition.

Pneumonia attacks the air cells of the lungs. An inflammation is set up and matter is thrown off which causes the air cells to solidify, thus preventing the natural flow of blood thru the lungs. This "backing up" of the blood causes the heart to pump harder, just as stepping on a hose increases the water pressure, which is the reason why, during this disease, the physician watches the overburdened heart so carefully. After recovery the lungs are filled with a mass of wreckage—the debris of the battle—which must be gotten rid of by a process known as resolution. Frequently, inflamed spots remain, congestion persists, cough hangs on, and the least exposure brings on a cold that is hard to get rid of. If neglected, such damaged air passages may easily develop serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should always continue under a physician's care and frequent examinations should be made to see that nature is properly continuing the rebuilding process. Nightly applications of Vick's VapoRub will aid nature in this work. Because Vicks acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas. Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea. Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 232 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.
