Oregon Observations

Portland.—Oregon Baptists, under the direction of their county chairman, who were named recently, have begun active work organizing the individual church committees that will have charge of the Oregon phase of the Baptist nation-wide campaign for $100,000,000 of which Oregon's quota is $1,000,000.

Portland.—A new trial in the suit of Miles Eckerson against Sheriff Thomas M. Hartburn, former jailer Roy Kendall and Patrolman A. McFarlane, to recover $2,000 damages for alleged false imprisonment, will be commenced Friday morning.

Bend.—A minimum wage increase for teachers in the Bend city schools was announced today by the board of directors, to take effect next fall.

Portland.—H. E. Sackett, Nyan, Oregon, homesteader, was sentenced to six months in the Multnomah county jail and fined $500 by Federal Judge Wolverson Tuesday as a result of a conviction two weeks ago by a federal jury on a charge of moonshining.

Portland.—Accompanied by a citation expressing the gratitude of the French republic and signed minister of foreign affairs, a medal was received Tuesday by C. Henri Labbe, French consul here, to be presented to Mrs. W. J. Burns of Portland, as a token of appreciation of the work which she did during the war in making surgical dressings.

A petition containing more than 1300 signatures and requesting that the name of William Gibbs McAdoo of New York be placed on the democratic primary ballot as a candidate for nomination for president of the United States, was filed with the secretary of state here Tuesday afternoon by Newton McCoy of Portland.

TO RESTOCK OUR STREAMS.

Commendable efforts to restore harmony between discordant factions of sportsmen and conflicting commercial interests are being made by the new Fish and Game Commission, but to secure the restocking of our streams drastic action will be necessary in the establishment of closed seasons and basic changes in the present inadequate laws which are daily proving an effective agent in the extermination of the trout.

One of the first essentials for intelligent protection is a scientific survey of each of the main streams and its tributaries, the native fish, their food supply, habits, and spawning seasons, the approximate finny population and the causes for extermination. This survey should be made jointly by the scientists of the federal bureau of hatcheries and the fish culturists of the state and would supply data requisite for intelligent action.

The present closed season, November to April, does not afford much protection for trout. It is an inheritance from eastern states, designed for the eastern brook trout, which spawns in the late fall and early winter months. The native Oregon trout, both rainbow, including steel-heads and red-sides, and cut-throat or black-spotted, spawn in the late winter and spring months and the season opens, April 1, in the midst of the spawning period.

Moreover, the present laws are something of a joke, as they permit an open season the year around for "salmon trout" and "there ain't no such animal." The salmon trout is a name applied to any sea-going trout during its sojourn in coastal waters.

Our game and fish laws are largely the result of local demands upon legislators by hunters and fishermen who are looking after their own pleasure and big bags and full creels rather than the preservation of game or trout. Every effort to close a stream during the spawning period brings a vigorous protest from some coterie of fish-hogs and the legislature follows the lines of least resistance.

Experience has proven that the hatcheries are unable to keep the streams replenished with intensive fishing permitted during the spawning period. This period is not the same in all streams and the closed period must vary with the necessities of the situation in different localities. It is possible to restock the streams, if the depletion is controlled, and despite local protest, this must be done if we are to keep the trout from extermination.

The public is slowly awakening to the fact that our wild life faces extermination and public sentiment will sustain the commission in any program initiated along scientific lines to check the slaughter and replenish the supply, for our out-of-doors resources are recognized as a valuable asset to the state, both for the recreation of the people and commercially in the attraction of money-spending tourists.

Roseburg business men are pledged to wear blue overalls to combat the high prices. If they do the hard work the overalls were intended for, it will help some.

Chicago, the sixth German city, gave Hiram Johnson a vote of 46,000, which indicates that he is the kaiser's candidate.

A Salem woman is said to be among the victims of the Los Angeles blue-beard who married 20 women, mostly widows. Even a blue-beard couldn't resist the widows.

The railroad strike proves to have been a Bolshevik move, financed by the I. W. W.—as most of the illegal strikes are. The leaders should be jailed or deported.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

The Money Question
I felt my eyes smart with tears as I listened to Alice's homily on marriage. With my mind's eye I looked over all my women acquaintances and I wondered if one of them could fulfill the requirements of a man who wanted only a doll.

Not to Be Disturbed
"Oh, I wouldn't disturb her for the world," said John heartily, and then he evidently looked at his watch, for after a moment's silence he said, "Good heavens, how late it is. I had no idea it was half past 11, and I've got to get up early in the morning. I want to try and get away from here tomorrow and I've got to get this whole matter of Katherine's income and the house and everything left her by the will settled. I think she had better give me a power of attorney tomorrow, if she is able to do so, and then she will have no more trouble. I will transact all the business for her."

SLEEPY-TIME TALES

THE TALE OF MAJOR MONKEY
BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY
A SWEET TOOTH. CHAPTER XXI.
After his ride on old dog Spot, Major Monkey went to the henhouse for eggs even oftener than he had gone before.

Perhaps he had become fonder of eggs. Or perhaps he had become bolder. Anyhow, he noticed that old dog Spot gave him a wide berth. When he was a good while before anything happened. But Johnnie Green did not mind that. He had brought plenty of cookies to munch. And he pretended that he was a sailor in the crew's nest of a ship, on the lookout for a sail.

After a while he almost forgot what he was really doing. He was leaning far out of the cupola, shading his eyes with one hand, and stuffing a cookie into his mouth with the other, and gazing off across the meadow when all at once he heard old Spot yelping.

That sound brought Johnnie to his senses. And glancing down, he saw Spot tearing across the barnyard, making for the woodshed door in great bounds. And behind him, perched on the roof of the henhouse, Johnnie saw a familiar figure.

"It's the monkey again!" Johnnie Green cried. And he clambered quickly to the ground.

But when he reached the henhouse Major Monkey had fled. Johnnie could see his red coat flickering among the leaves in the orchard. But he knew it was useless to follow.

Although Major Monkey was aware that Johnnie Green had seen him again, he did not stop visiting the henhouse. To be sure, he became somewhat more wary. He never went inside the henhouse for eggs without first looking around carefully, to make sure that Johnnie Green wasn't watching him. And for a time the Major kept an eye out for traps.

He saw nothing of the sort anywhere. But one day when he leaped to the window-sill of the henhouse he was delighted to find a lump of maple sugar, which some one had carelessly left there.

At least, that was what the Major supposed. And with something a good deal like a chuckle he ate the daintiest morsel of the entire community. He has been a resident of Salem for eight years, and soon after his arrival became actively engaged in business here.

Dr. O. L. Scott, present councilman from ward 7, also filed this morning for reelection. His slogan is "Work for a strictly business administration and a greater Salem."

Ralph Thompson, salesmanager at the Marion garage, Monday filed his candidacy for councilman from the seventh ward, making three candidates from that ward thus far.

Had certain politicians been present at the time, they would undoubtedly have sought reservations on the ten commandments.

Nicotine Poisoning

Its Cause and Cure (By C. Burton Connor, M. D.)

New York: Nicotine is the most active ingredient of tobacco and is a deadly poison even in small doses. Fortunately in the use of tobacco we only get very minute doses to which the system seemingly becomes accustomed, but it acts as a slow poison just the same, and as such it does great injury to the human system without making itself apparent to the average individual. Many say "Tobacco has no bad effect upon me." Yet these same people could not under any circumstances be induced to take even the smallest dose of other well known poisons not nearly so dangerous in their action. You have often heard the expression, "He has a tobacco cough." This is an irritation of the mucous membranes caused by Nicotine, and exposes the throat and lungs to germs which in many cases prove fatal. Inflamed air passages frequently lead to infections such as tuberculosis, scarlet fever, diphtheria, rheumatism and many other diseases. Continued irritation of the throat through the use of tobacco has been held responsible for cancer of the tongue, throat and stomach. There is no question but that the continued use of nicotine as found in tobacco effects the optic nerve, thus weakening the eyesight and many cases of total blindness may be traced to this subtle poison. Nicotine also causes a thickening of and contraction of the blood vessels which brings on high blood pressure, and with it sooner or later apoplexy, cerebral hemorrhage and paralysis. This is not a pleasant picture to the users of tobacco. Some who use tobacco may go through life without experiencing any of these symptoms, but these cases are comparatively rare. Frequently they feel any evil effects because they hesitate to confess that they lack the will power to stop the use of this poison, and they always lay the blame for any illness caused by the excessive use of tobacco to some other cause, when down deep in their hearts they know the real reason in tobacco. Diseases commonly known as heart trouble, kidney trouble, eye troubles, nervousness, loss of memory, general debility, loss of vigor, premature old age, stomach troubles and many other diseases may be greatly benefited and often cured by the elimination of nicotine from the system. I am frequently asked, "What is the remedy?" "How can I get rid of the nicotine in my system?" The answer is, cut down on your tobacco or stop it entirely. "Is there anything I can take to stop the craving for tobacco?" is another question I am asked. Yes, is the answer. I have had remarkable success with a simple tablet known as Nicotol. It is absolutely harmless and contains no habit forming drug. This remedy seems to quickly overcome all desire for tobacco and it does not cost a fortune either. Should you wish to know positively if tobacco is injuring you, just make the following test: Take Nicotol tablets for a week or so and note how much better you will feel. You will need no further evidence to convince you that tobacco is not necessary for your health or happiness and you will be astonished and surprised at how easy it was to overcome this injurious and useless habit. Try it today before you forget it and I know you will thank me for writing this article.

NOTE: When asked about Nicotol tablets one of our leading druggists said: "They are simply wonderful for the tobacco habit, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." The manufacturers authorize every druggist to refund the money to anybody who is dissatisfied and Nicotol is sold in this city under an iron clad money back guarantee by all up to date druggists, including D. J. Fry. (adv)
