Feminine Industrial Workers Have Eliminated War Time Uniforms, but They are Still Tolling .- Y. W. C A. Seeks to Solve Problem of Proper Recreation for Them.

THE industrial girls have doffed their war-time uniforms, but they are still in industry. In other words the problem still exists of how they shall spend their week-ends and their short vacations so that they come back full of pep the Monday after.

Summer campa belp solve the problem, The Y. W. C. A. found last year that two thousand girls a week would gladly desert the "tinsel joys" of town for the fun of a dip and a good-night swim in the thirty-three camps the Association established. These were dotted all over the country. Tents and shacks and every sort of house, from mountain cabins in Tennessee to old French mansions on the to old French mansions on the Gulf Coast, were pressed into
