DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES FOR PEACE.

It is evident from their slogans and platforms that if republican candidates for delegate to the national convention are afraid to take a stand on the Peace Treaty and League of Nations, the democratic candidates are not, for practically all the candidates are on record as favoring immediate ratification of the Treaty of Versailles.

There are 12 candidates for delegate at large, four to be elected, and six from each the first and second congressional districts and ten from the third district, two to be elected from each district. Practically all of them want a League of Nations.

Along with the demand for peace are woven the customary partisan platitudes, admiration of the administration, and of themselves for being democrats. One of the candidates confesses a slogan that "there is no greater honor than delegate to a national democratic convention" while others camouflage their personal ambitions as future office holders with high sounding but meaningless phrases for regulating the nation.

Judge G. T. Baldwin of Klamath Falls, among the candidates for delegate at large, does not mention the League, but wants "America for Americans." Charles Emory Dye of Oregon City also fails to mention the Treaty, but wants "real liberty, subject only to rights;" Frederick V. Holman of Portland declares that he believes "in true Americanism and is opposed to socialism and paternalism;" Richard W. Montague of Portland, filed no slogan or platform, neither did Dr. J. C. Smith, once candidate for governor, but both are on record as favoring the League of Nations.

All the other candidates commit themselves definitely to the League. Will E. Purdy of Salem believes in curbing the middleman and in "Bryan as the party's greatest asset." Dr. J. F. Reddy of Medford "believes in the League of Nations, with or without reservations, willing to try anything once."

Among the first district's candidates for delegate, all favor immediate ratification of the treaty, except Al Waugh of Toledo, whose slogan is "your man is my man, let's elect him"; and Thomas Whitehorn of Corvallis, whose slogan is "40 years a democrat," and "believes in the principles of democracy," whatever that may mean.

In the second district, Frank L. Young of Lakeview alone implies opposition to the League of Nations in his platform declaring for American institutions "without asking the advice or consent of any other nation on earth."

Among the third district candidates, H. B. Adams of Portland believes in perpetuating the two old parties but is silent on the Treaty. Walter B. Gleason of Portland believes we are becoming too paternalistic as a government, but says nothing about the League. George J. Smith believes in "American ideals and institutions" but says nothing about Wilson's peace policy, while Robert H. Strong refuses to commit himself on any subject.

No matter who is selected, a majority favoring ratification of the Treaty of Versailles seems assured.

Oregon Observations

Portland—John Moore, logger, was found dead in his room here Monday, death being due to drinking of denatured alcohol, according to the police and city physician, Edward Leonard, 45 years of age, said to be from San Francisco, was taken to a local hospital suffering from effects of denatured alcohol. Leonard was taken to a police station this morning and collapsed before he could be charged. The city physician said he was a victim of wood alcohol.

Medford—An aggressive campaign against tobacco and questionable movies will be carried on in Jackson county according to a report from Ashland where a resolution to this effect was adopted by the county organization of the W. C. T. U. at its annual meeting last Friday. Prohibiting cigarettes for minors, according to the resolution is not enough, and the new campaign will be against tobacco in any form. The first step will be a campaign against tobacco bill board advertising. It was also recommended to establish a county censorship board to supervise moving pictures and eliminate all objectionable films.

Portland—Normal output of bread is being maintained in Portland notwithstanding a walkout of union bakers according to statements made by the Master Bakers association. In a statement issued by the association it was admitted that some bakers were short handed, but that the places are being filled with competent bakers with little trouble. Approximately 200 bakers quit their work Saturday night, it was said.

Eugene—Registration for Lane county totals 16,756 names, classified as follows: Republican 11,500, democrat 4622, miscellaneous 634. From the fact that a large portion of the county has been covered by the boosters for the millage tax bills and the good roads bonds, it is probable that this figure is very close to the actual voting strength of the county.

Halsey—A meeting under the direction of the Linn County Good Roads association at Halsey was attended by delegations from Albany. Speakers were County Chairman Rex Davis, Secretary A. C. Schmidt, County Commissioner T. J. Butler, J. M. Hawkins, A. M. Reeves and W. R. Scott. All urged the necessity of voting the additional bond issue. Some spoke in favor of the state and common school millage bills.

Glendale—A crippled man and his companion, alleged auto thieves, knocked a hole through the roof of the jail Friday night and limped, necessarily up the alley under the glare of electric lights, vanishing from the ken of the law. A guard was on duty. The men tore down the brick chimney and climbed through the hole thus made to the attic before setting into position to knock the shingles off. They lowered themselves to the ground by a rope made of their hand quilt.

Rippling Rhymes

CHANGING STYLES.
 Last year I bought a limousine, the latest thing in boats, and it was painted black and green, and cost me many groats. "It is the very latest word in cars," the agent cried; "all other cars will look absurd, this noble bus beside. The pride of ownership 'twill give, and fill your soul with bliss, and it will last you while you live, I wot and ween and wis." And now my tumbrel's out of style, it looks like Noah's ark, and when I'd push her for a mile I go out after dark. For if I take it out by day, by jokers it's absurd; they ask me if it is the dray the Pilgrim Fathers used. My wife declares she'd rather walk, and proper pride maintain, than ride with me around a block in that ancestral wain. And thus the motor game is played upon the trustful chump, whose last year's model looks decayed and ready for the dump. My van is just as fine as silk, so far as chugging goes; but people of the critic ilk turn up the scornful nose; its hood is badly out of date, the windshield slant is vile, the body lines, which should be straight, bulge out in ancient style. And so I'll have to buy a gig that's up-to-date and new; and in six months, I'll bet a fig, 'twill be a has been too.

DISTURBING NEWS
 The next thing I heard was a voice that seemed to float to my ears from a great distance. It said: "Well, she will be all right now," and then I opened my eyes. I never knew that eyelids could be so heavy; it seemed to me that mine weighed pounds—and I looked up into the face of my kind old doctor.

I knew, of course, the moment that I saw him that I must have been unconscious a long while, long enough to send for him and long enough to send for stretch me out on the bed and dress my clothing. I was lying there in my night dress, and for all that I knew, I might have been ill for weeks.

Allice came forward and said, "Don't talk, Katherine, just lie still."

"But I don't understand. The last thing I remember, you asked me to go with you to see Ruth. Was that hours or days ago?"

"It was about two hours ago, Katherine, when you fainted."

"I have fainted so many times lately. What is the matter with me, doctor?"

The old doctor looked at me curiously.

"Don't you know what is the matter with you, my dear child?" he asked.

Never Fainted Before.
 "I haven't the slightest idea. My heart has always been strong enough until now. I never fainted before in my life until within the last few months. First, just before the automobile accident, when I was expecting—a rush of realization came over me."

"Was it possible—Oh, it couldn't be," but even as my thoughts formed again the sentence, "it couldn't be," I knew instinctively that the doctor was right.

"Oh, doctor, I can't, I can't, I don't want a baby now," I said.

"Why, Katherine, I thought you would be delighted," he said soothingly.

"I'm not, I don't want one," I said hysterically. "I wanted my other baby, only God knows how I wanted it, and that awful automobile accident came and took it from me. And I grieved and it seemed to me as though I could not bear it, because John, my husband, has been so sympathetic as he should have been. It seemed to me that an unborn child meant nothing to him. But, now, now, I don't want a baby and I can't but understand why I must have one now."

I was crying hysterically and Allice was trying to calm me. The doctor mixed a sedative and insisted upon my taking it.

"She will be better in a little while," he said.

Never Will Be Better.
 "No, I won't answer, 'I will never be better. I shall be quite as unhappy about this baby's coming as I was about losing the other.'"

It seemed to me, as I lay there, that no woman had ever been so unhappy over the knowledge that a child was coming as I. I tried to tell myself that I was wicked and selfish but all the while that insistent thought was flashing through my brain that when a child comes the marriage bond is heightened.

As Allice said just before I fainted, "When children come, the marriage is

SLEEPY-TIME TALES
THE TALE OF RUSTY WREN
 BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

TOO MANY CALLERS
 The news of Rusty Wren's sign, "Boy Wanted," spread like wildfire through the whole of Pleasant Valley. Rusty had put the sign out at daybreak. And before sunset as many as fifty of the field and forest people had come shyly to Farmer Green's doorway.

Some of them came to apply for the position, and some of them merely wanted to see the sign—for it was a most unusual sight in that neighborhood.

There were others, too, such as Fatty Coon and Tommy Fox, who said that while they didn't care to visit Farmer Green's place in the daytime, they expected to call there during the night and take a look at Rusty Wren's home and the odd sign upon it.

Yes! So quiet a person as Rusty Wren, who never wandered far from home, had become famous in a day.

Yet it proved to be a very bad day for Rusty's family, because he had almost no time at all in which to try to bring home any food. No sooner had he talked with one caller than another knocked at his door. And so the steady stream of strangers kept him busy as a little red wagon, as Farmer Green would remark.

It was a discouraging business, to say the least. Though Rusty had advertised for a "boy," persons of all ages appeared and wanted to work for him. Some of them were old enough to be his grandfather. And, what was worse, they were all so big that they couldn't squeeze through Rusty's little round door. (The hole in the syringe can, you will remember, was only slightly larger than a quarter of a dollar.)

Of course, there was no use of his hiring a helper that could do only half the work. What Rusty wanted was somebody that could not only catch an insect, but bring it right inside the house and drop it into the mouth of one of his children.

At last when Rusty had almost given up all hope of finding anyone of the required size, a young English sparrow flew up and said boldly that he was the very person for the position. He claimed that he could get in and out of Rusty's door without any trouble. "And he was just about to prove his claim, too, when Rusty Wren stopped him.

"Wait a moment!" he told the sparrow.

Kay Boomed For Speakership Of House At Lunch

An early boom for Thomas B. Kay for speaker of the next house of representatives was launched by Col. E. Hofer of this city at the regular Monday luncheon of the Commercial club Monday noon. Hofer, speaking in behalf of the Marion County Taxpayers league, invited the club members to attend a meeting of the league to be held here Saturday morning. In the course of his remarks he intimated very strongly that Kay headed the league's legislative ticket and declared that he not only hoped to see his election to the state legislature but his elevation to the speakership.

Commissioners Inspect Highway

Medford, Or., May 4.—Simon Benson and E. C. Kiddle of the state highway commission accompanied by state Highway Engineer Herbert Nunn, inspected the Pacific Highway over the Siskiyou Sunday and Monday together with the members of the county court took a trip over the route of the new Crater Lake highway. Mr. Benson announced contractor Arthur Huber has been directed to put the Siskiyou road in good condition for the National Ad club caravan which pass through Medford, May 20.

New Shipbuilding Firm Incorporates

The Albina Marine Iron works, organized for the purpose of building and repairing ships has filed articles of incorporation with the state corporation department here. The company is located in Portland and is capitalized at $50,000. The incorporators are: William Crawford, George Rogers and George Finketh.

Articles were also filed by the North Portland Audit company of Portland, capitalized at $1500. H. A. Ebling, W. A. Willis and A. W. Douglas are the incorporators.

The Western Bond and Mortgage company of Portland filed a certificate showing an increase in capitalization from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Resolutions of dissolution were filed by the Nehalem Telephone and Telegraph company of Tillamook, and the Oregon City Lumber company of Oregon City.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention the Salem Capital Journal.

302 X Yes CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT—Referred to the people by the Legislative Assembly.
303 No LIMITATION OF FOUR PER CENT STATE INDEBTEDNESS FOR PERMANENT ROADS.—Purpose: To amend Section 7 of Article XI of the Constitution of the State of Oregon so as to permit the creation of debts and installation including previous debts and liabilities for the purpose of building and maintaining permanent roads to the amount of four per cent of the assessed valuation of all the property in the State of Oregon, instead of two per cent as now provided by law.

NO PROPERTY TAX—NO DIRECT TAX
NO INCREASE IN AUTO LICENSE FEES
NO INCREASE OF GASOLINE TAX

Keep these three facts in mind. The present auto license fees and gasoline tax will pay both the principal and interest on all the bonds under this amendment, and will yield an annual surplus besides for other state highway work. No additional taxation of any kind.

FEDERAL FUNDS MUST BE MATCHED
 Oregon must have sufficient Highway Funds to match Federal apportionments or Oregon cannot get the benefit of Federal money for Oregon Roads. Increasing this constitutional limit is a necessity. Unless limit is increased, either state roads cannot be completed for many, many years, or must be financed by direct property taxation. This measure averts direct property tax for state highways and makes early completion possible. Let's get the roads built now.

Income from Present Sources Sufficient to Pay Principal and Interest.

The fact that revenues from auto license fees and gasoline tax, without increase of present rates, will be ample to pay both principal and interest on these bonds, is clearly set forth by official figures in the State Pamphlet, mailed by every registered voter. Refer to State Pamphlet for verification. Examine the table carefully. It proves that no property tax is required and that present rates for auto license fees and gas tax will not only pay principal and interest but yield surplus bonds.

For Interest Tables, Pamphlets or further information, write to OREGON ROADS AND DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION, C. C. CURRIE, General Executive Committee, 1114th Campaign Headquarters, 311 Worcester Building, Portland, Oregon.
