Stolen Car Is Stripped, Even To Four Wheels

Mt. Angel, Or., June 7.—Stripped of every removable part that could not be identified, H. R. Brown's Ford car, which was stolen from the chautauqua grounds in Woodburn a week ago, was found in a wooded section of Clackamas county Friday evening by a farmer living east of the Glad Tidings school house ten miles from this city. The car was stolen while Mr. Brown was attending the chautauqua. The case was reported to the police officer and officers of other towns were notified to keep a lookout for the car, but the miscreants were careful not to go where they were likely to be apprehended in making the changes. When they reached this secluded spot they removed the four wheels, top, radiator, timer, head and tail lights, hood, cushions and all such parts as would likely be required in rebuilding a car.

It is recalled by a man in Woodburn that four boys were acting suspiciously around the chautauqua tent the night the car was stolen. They were supposed to be bootlegging or trying to steal gasoline. The party claims to have seen them drive away, two in a car, and it is believed that one of the cars conveying the quart was the car stripped and left in the woods.

R. L. Smith of the Willamette saw a wrecked car in his shop and hauled the wrecked car to the shop where it was repaired at a cost of approximately $300, not including a new top. The old top left was put on instead. The parties who did the changing must have been expert mechanics and they were careful not to take any part which contained a mark that might lead to their identification. The machine was not insured.
