Oregon Observations

Portland—Much after the fashion of collecting maple sap, the Northwestern Turpentine company has been gathering pitch from fir stands in this section and has begun production of turpentine and resin. Leases have been secured on certain tracts of timber, providing that all holes bored in trees shall be plugged up when the pitch has been removed. After securing the turpentine by distilling, it has been found that a small amount of balsam could be obtained from old growth yellow fir.

Portland—Logs from many coast sections of the state are to go over the great log booming plant being completed on the Willamette slough. Terminals and dumps, the largest on any river of the northwest, are being installed at a cost of $250,000. The first timber to go through is that being cut in the virgin country on the Nehalem-Tualatin watershed.

Portland—No longer will the housewife find herself forced to buy what she entertains at tea, sugar wafers packed in tins that have come clear from the east. A local factory has just installed a big machine that actually molds the batter on engraved plates and bakes it in two minutes, finally being the cookie. The machine was purchased in London.

Portland—Twenty British merchants, touring the department stores in the larger cities of the United States and Canada, paid Portland a visit Monday and were guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

Portland—Swiss goats imported from Toggenberg are now supplying the northwest with the material for Swiss cheese from Portland. The herd which recently arrived, is to be made perfectly at home, for it is to have a Swiss keeper. The Hazelwood creamery has brought the animals here and placed them on a ranch at Lake-side. An investment of $15,000 is represented by the new arrangements for the making of Swiss cheese.

Terrebonne—What old settlers thought was chalk and what sugar refiners knew to be diatomaceous earth is being taken from the Western Diatomite company's mine at Lower Bridge in such quantities that warehouses here are unable to accommodate it and erection of a new one is to be begun within a few days. Diatomite is valued as a paint and rubber filler and as an insulating material.

Portland—Lanterns designed especially for the camper and alike are to be turned out by a new manufacturing concern, the De Luxe Electric Lantern Company, which has just decided to locate here. It will ship to all coast cities and Alaska.

Astoria—Pulp wood is probably soon to come from the former holdings of the Hammond Lumber company in Clatsop county, which has just been purchased by the Crown-Willamette Paper company. The price is known to range between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

Astoria—Logging operations involving expenditure of over $1,500,000 in the development of a tract of 600,000,000 feet of timber in Clatsop county have started by the Saddle Mountain Logging company.

Portland—A part interest in Baby's Boudier, an exclusive infant's apparel shop has just been purchased by J. L. O'Keefe, formerly with the Brown Durrell company of New York.

Abe Martin

"Somehow selectin' a wife seems to be so cold blooded. After all, I believe 'th' feller that she hooked without knowin' it makes th' most reconciled husband," declares Miss Fern Lippincott. "He feller that don't address my knowin' his business, but nobody else."

A THIRD PARTY IN PROSPECT.
La Follette supporters in Wisconsin are repudiating the republican platform and ticket and talking of a third party, to be headed by the senator. "The republican platform is a sorry dodge, it is not even clever, and the ticket fits it like a glove does the hand," is the way the La Follette people put it. Though La Follette is not a bolter, and has refused to be read out of the republican party, he is reported ready to lead a third party movement to oppose both the old parties.

Such a third party as proposed by the "committee of 48", headed by Amos Pinchot, Basil Manly, Herbert Bigelow, Glenn E. Plumb, David Starr Jordan, Bishop Chas. D. Williams and other progressive reformers, none of them office-seekers or political hacks, will have a considerable following, and throw a monkey-wrench into the well laid plans of both the "Old Guard" and the "Old Gang."

Allied with the third party movement and a considerable element in its support, will be the Farmer's Non-Partisan League, which holds the balance of power in many western states. Also affiliated with it will be the "Society of Equity", another farmer organization, much of the organized labor support, and those who favor public ownership of public utilities and national resources.

The proposed platforms of the new party, which may be christened the "National" party or the "People's" party, declares for public ownership, free speech, equal economic, political and legal rights, abolition of injunctions against labor strikes, reform of taxation, economy and withdrawal of land and natural resources from speculation.

The projectors are not in sympathy with Socialists or Socialism, but they do not believe that things should remain as they have been always and they do not believe in a political platform and candidate full 20 years behind the times.

AN ALL-METAL AIRSHIP.
Completion and successful trials of a metal airplane, the Larsen J. L. 6 all metal monoplane, is declared by army officers to usher in a new era in aviation. The airship carries six passengers and their baggage, and makes nearly two miles a minute in its flight.

The airplane is designed to secure the maximum safety, service and efficiency. The metal wings carry the gasoline tanks which have a capacity sufficient to keep the plane in the air over ten hours. However, consumption of gasoline is very low.

The cabin is designed for the comfort of the passengers. There are four upholstered seats arranged similarly to the seats in a limousine. There is a door on each side of the cabin, and isinglass windows, which can be raised or lowered by the passengers. Behind the cabin there is a small compartment for baggage. The metal construction has a big advantage in that it is both fire-proof and weatherproof, and the possibility of developing this type into a very much larger plane with greatly increased carrying capacity makes its introduction very important to both commercial and military aviation.

Nomination of Senator Harding has had a magical effect upon Senator Penrose, and virtually ended his illness. His secretary declares that the nomination "has been a great tonic" to the boss, who chuckles over the ease with which the senate leaders controlled the convention. Evidently Harding is a substitute for Tanlac with Penrose.

Rippling Rhymes

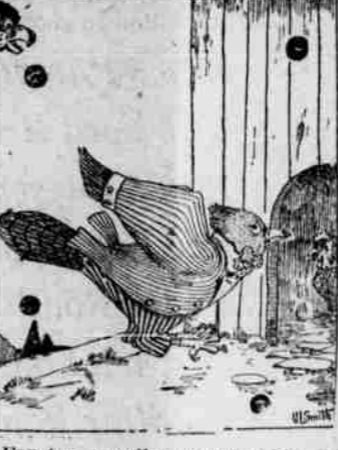

THE ROAD HOG.
I wonder what the road hog thinks, as he goes on his way, detested by all mortal ginks, and cursed by night and day. He surely hates the human race, as down the road he swings, and in his heart there is no place for kindly, friendly things. We have our little pewter carts, and we would sing and smile, if road hogs didn't break our hearts each quarter of a mile. The road hog loafs along, alas, and when we honk our horn, beseeching room enough to pass, he grins with maudlin scorn. Around the risky curves he flies, and thinks he's in the swim; the rules that govern decent guys have little weight with him. Some day the fool will break his neck, but ere that day arrives, a dozen autos he may wreck, or spoil a dozen lives. And as I watch him drive his barge, and weave and spurt and turn, I wonder why he is at large when there are jails to burn. I wonder why a man is fined ten dollars or ten days, for shooting road hogs and their kind, along the public ways.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE
By the Noted Author
IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON

WE FIND MY HUSBAND.
I confessed to myself a little feeling of triumph as the nurse read the telegram to me, and I was selfish enough to hope that John would have an hour or two of great anxiety. Evidently this was true, or he would never have tried to get us on the telephone as his wife also told us he had tried to do.
"Is the doctor going to talk with John?" I asked.
"He has sent for Mr. Goodwin, as he does not hear very well, and if we get the line through before Mr. Goodwin comes I expect I will have to talk with him. Is there anything in particular you want me to say?"
"Nothing," I answered, and thought "Oh, yes, be sure and tell him my baby is a girl."
I smiled a little to myself as I said this, because I was quite sure he would insist upon calling it "my" baby after he knew its sex.
Nestles A Bit Closer.
"Never mind, dearest," I said, as I put my cheek close to its little downy head. "Mother will see to it that no other man will ever wish that you were out of this world." As though in answer to my promise, the tiny head nestled a bit closer against my breast and I closed my eyes in perfect contentment. I do not know how long we slept, my baby and I, but I was awakened by a noise in the hall—one of those suppressed noises which tell that someone is trying to do something very quietly and not succeeding in it.
For a moment or two the sounds were confused, and then I became aware that someone was talking over the phone. It was Charles trying to talk to John.
I had not at first recognized Charles' voice, as it was so hard and his words so crisp—very different from Charles' kindly tones and his suave English.
"Yes, I heard him say, 'Katherine is nearly out of danger, but she has been very, very ill. For a time we thought she would not recover.'"
Then there was a silence for a few seconds, as though Charles was listening to what John said at the other end. Then he spoke. "Yes, I realize all that, Gordon, but you must understand that we did everything we could to find you except to put private detectives on your track."
In Deadly Earnest.
Again silence.
"I am not trying to be funny. I am in deadly earnest, in fact at one time we debated the doctor and I, if we should not do that very thing."
Well, under the circumstances one might think that a man would try and keep in touch with his office

SLEEPY-TIME TALES
THE TALE OF JASPER JAY
BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

JASPER HAS TO HIDE.
When Jasper Jay looked up and saw Mr. Red-shouldered Hawk darting down upon him from above, he dodged to one side and screamed for help.
His friend Nobby Jake was known

For two excellent reasons Mr. Red-shouldered Hawk did not follow him as a great fighter. And Jasper hoped that together they might be able to drive Mr. Hawk away.
But he was disappointed. Nobby Jake did not appear. And there was a good reason why he did not. At that very moment he was flying across the meadow as fast as his beautiful wings could carry him. He had seen Mr. Hawk circling above the barn-

Normal School Salaries Raised

Monmouth, June 21.—The Board of Regents for Normal Schools held its annual meeting at Monmouth today. The principal business considered was the president's annual report and recommendations. The board authorized a substantial increase in salaries and the vacancies in the faculty were filled by the election of the following:
Miss Beth Godbold, graduate of the Cumnock school of oratory, Evanston, Illinois, head of the department of public speaking.
Miss Ruby Munford, graduate of Oregon Agricultural College, head of the department of home economics.
W. G. Beattie, graduate of the University of Oregon, head of the department of rural schools.
Mrs. Chloe A. Seymour, graduate of Normal School Charleston, Ill., supervisor Elkins Rural Center.
Miss Florence Hill, graduate of the Oregon Normal School, assistant supervisor Elkins Center.
Miss Nan Hunter, graduate of the Oregon Normal School, assistant supervisor Mountain View Center.
Miss Lola E. Records, graduate of Bellingham Normal school, third and fourth grade critic, Independence Training school.
Miss Bessie McChesney, graduate State Normal College, Greeley, Colorado, third and fourth grade critic Monmouth Training School.
Miss C. Eldora Ragon, graduate Teachers College, Columbia, assistant in the department of art.
Miss Cornelia Marvin was elected president of the board for the ensuing year.
The board authorized the executive committee to provide for the introduction of a Commercial Course to begin September 29, 1930, the object of the course being to fit teachers to teach in commercial courses in high schools.

Campaign Plans Of Republicans Assuming Form

Washington, June 21.—Republican campaign plans began to take definite shape with the conference here today of Senator Warren G. Harding, the presidential nominee, and members of the sub-committee of the republican national committee. This committee, headed by Chairman Will H. Hays, was named at the Chicago convention. Members of the sub-committee in addition to Mr. Hays are Charles D. Hillis of New York; John W. Weeks, Massachusetts; A. T. Hert, Kentucky; J. L. Hamon, Oklahoma; Ralph Williams, Oregon, all members of the national committee and Fred W. Upham, treasurer, and Clarence R. Miller, secretary, of that body.
Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, who managed Senator Harding's pre-convention campaign, will, at his own request, be relieved of any further burden in carrying on the campaign. It was stated today, and the conference is expected to name an executive committee consisting of members of the national body to take active charge of campaign. The committee will consist of not more than 15 members and will include a number of women.
The nominee spent a quiet day yesterday in anticipation of a busy week.
Prospects for a bumper grain crop on the dry lands of Baker county are better than for several years.

hawk had given the hens.
"For once there was more noise than even Jasper Jay liked. It appeared that there was a bold young rooster in the chicken house. And he objected to Jasper Jay's presence.
"What do you mean by coming in here where you're not wanted?" he screamed. "Where are your manners?"
Actually, Jasper Jay wondered what the rooster was talking about. Never having had any manners, Jasper didn't know the meaning of the word. And since he could not answer, he said nothing.
"Stick your spurs into him and maybe he'll speak!" screamed a pert young hen.
Jasper looked at the rooster then; and he saw that the brazen fellow wore long, sharp spurs upon his legs. They looked almost as wicked as Mr. Hawk's cruel talons.
"Please," said Jasper, "I've come in to get out of the way of Mr. Hawk."
"Ha!" cried the rooster. "Unless I'm mistaken you're the rogue that's always frightening the ladies by hens manage to stand it."
That was true, too. And that was what made the crowing sound so unpleasant in Jasper's ears.
He left as soon as he dared show himself out of doors. And he sometimes remarked, afterward that a chicken house wouldn't be a bad place to live in, after all, if it weren't for the roosters.
"They boast too much," said Jasper Jay. "Nothing could induce me to listen to their silly crowing. And to tell the truth, I don't see how the

The Choice Prizes of Life Are Won By the Healthy and Strong

The weak, soft, flabby-muscled—those who are deficient in vigor and vital force—have ever had to suffer the humiliation of being ruthlessly shoved aside by their stronger rivals. A clear, ruddy complexion; bright eyes; hardened muscles; and a well knit-together body of elastic set and sway, constitute a trump card in any game—whether of love or business.

If you feel that you are out-of-shape, lacking the stamina to stand up and claim your own, don't delay another day in commencing to take
