

League Will Be Injected Into Senate Races

New York, July 19.—Foreign affairs including the league of nations and proposed new Oriental exclusion treaties, will be vital issues in fourteen or fifteen states where contests are expected to develop in the election of United States senators, Senator Miles A. Poindexter announced here today at the republican national committee headquarters where he is chairman of the senatorial sub-committee.

"The senate is particularly important in this campaign," Senator Poindexter said, "because the number of leading issues are matters in the special jurisdiction of the senate. It is particularly true of the great question of our foreign relations—the league of nations and the effort of the democratic party to establish an international government as the final coup and consummation of the policy of internationalism to which the democratic party has devoted itself and which is now endorsed both in the democratic platform and by the agreement of Governor Cox with the policies of President Wilson.

"The senate saved the independence of the United States and it looks as though it would require a republican senate in the next congress to finally consummate this victory.

"On the Pacific coast there is a vital economic issue as to Japanese immigration. It is a struggle for possession of the land and for the supremacy of the white race on the Pacific. It can only be dealt with by way of a treaty of which the senate is final. The republican senate stands for control of this question by the American government. The democratic administration sought to submit it to a foreign tribunal, the council of the league of nations."

Senator Poindexter said that seven or eight of the states in which there would be contests for senator are on the Pacific slope which are vitally interested in the anti-alien problem.

The rain was heavy in the vicinity of this latter fire and there will be no danger of its developing into a big fire.
