My Dear Sir: Isn't it a fact that you seldom see a shoddy looking Liberty?

In this city, where scores of Libertys are on the streets daily, you will find fewer neglected looking ones in proportion to the number owned, than of probably any other car you care to name. They are invariably KEPT clean, the nickel is bright, the paint is fresh and everything about them looks spick and span. Why is it?

And in answer, let us ask, "why do you mow your front lawn?" One of the first things that moves one to select the Liberty is the beauty and style of its lines. In five years these lines have undergone no radical change. and although their influence may be detected in the changing style of numerous other cars, they still remain distinct and pleasing, and unapproached by imitation.

Owners are just as appreciative of this beauty after the car has served them one year, or two years, or even longer. It is still obviously in good taste and unaffected by the passing of freak designs. So it becomes an absolute responsibility with them to see that its pleasing lines are unmarred by a finish that shows signs of use.

However, the real quality of the Liberty goes even deeper, and it is the deep-grounded goodness of the car which holds the owner's appreciation so securely, for year after year.

There is no satisfaction in re-decorating a rundown house. But there is real, deep and thorough satisfaction in renewing the outward appearance of a car that refuses to grow old.

The pride that any owner takes-the pride that you would take—in a car that persisted in remaining as sound and sturdy and dependable as the day it was bought, would certainly be reason enough for occasionally brightening up its appearance. Especially when nothing else was required to provide you with all that a new one could supply.

You can quite easily satisfy yourself that this has been the common experience of Liberty owners. It is an experience worth desiring-and worth in-
