Garage Burglary Proves Popular; Thief Gets Haul

Garage burglarizing is proving popular in Salem. Whether the former horse thief is a modernist and has altered his business accordingly, or whether the thieves are merely the common, or garden variety or robbers, police do not know.

Joe Roque, 385 Bellvue street, notified officers Wednesday night that somebody had entered his garage and made quite a haul. Officer Davis investigated and learned that a black robe, one pair of black gantlet gloves one auto jacket, one canvas auto bed, two canvas hammocks and one pair of pliers had been stolen.

A few days ago thieves were reported to have stolen a 20 gallon gasoline tank for another Salem man's garage. The robber gained entrance to Mr. Roque's place, it is said, by prying a board loose at the rear of the building.

Russian-Polish Peace Negotiations Halted by Victory

Washington, Aug. 19.—Unless bolshevik military leaders succeed in quickly organizing a more successful resistance, defeat of the soviet forces before Warsaw will become a "very serious" one, according to a cable received by the state department today from the American legation at Warsaw.

R. H. Loomis of Waterloo, Linn county, aged 34 years, has secured a license to marry Mrs. Phoebe Sturtevant of Lebanon, who is 67 years.
