Veterans' Reunion To Draw 100,000
Washington.—More than 100,000 persons are expected to attend the national reunion of the United Confederate Veterans and the Sons of Confederate Veterans, which will be held at Houston, Texas, Oct. 5, 6, 7 and 8, according to an announcement recently by J. R. Price, of Washington, chairman of the executive committee of the senior organization.

Special rates of one cent a mile will obtain all over the country for the reunions.

Preparations of accommodation for the visitors in a camp at Hermann Park, near Houston, have already begun. Veterans who are too feeble to be quartered at the camp will be given free accommodations elsewhere.

World War Draft Evader Hangs Self

Hartford, Conn.—Conrad Janke, who evaded the draft at the outset of the world war, then conscience stricken and fearing arrest and imprisonment, surrendered himself to police in New York several days ago, hung himself with his necktie in his cell at the jail here. Janke failed to register for the first draft, registered in the second draft, and then fled to Panama. He returned after the close of the war. When he surrendered he said he had been under the impression, no matter where he went, that federal officers were following him and that life under these conditions was unbearable. He said he felt relieved after surrendering. He became disconsolate after being placed in jail.

Livestock Replace Grain In Dakota

Bismarck, N. D.—Grain farming in the Dakotas is giving way to livestock raising and diversified farming. This year the planting of feed crops has been phenomenal, according to M. C. Cutting, agricultural economist of the Farmer, who has just concluded an extensive survey.

"Probably 25 per cent of the acreage that last year was in wheat is in forage crops this year," he says. "Silos are going up in many places to take care of the corn and sunflower crops, and, in fact, to provide safe storage for practically any kind of feed. Next winter there will be plenty of feed for the livestock remaining on the farms, for the rebuilding of these herds and for the starting of new herds."

In eastern North Dakota the grain farming has for some time been giving way to livestock raising and diversified farming. Development work in every phase of agriculture has been proceeding with a rush since the progressive laws passed by the legislature were upheld by the United States Supreme court.

Champion Swimmer Visits Old Haunts

Portland, Ore.—Norman Ross, the champion swimmer, took a picture of his old swimming hole, at the Columbia Slough near here, when he visited his Portland home recently, according to his father, C. E. Ross.

"I'm going to take a picture of where I really learned to swim," he said when he left the Ross home armed with a camera.

Ross is a member of the swimming team picked to represent the United States at the Antwerp Olympic games.

Lightening Bolt Plays Queer Pranks

Bellefontaine, O.—A strange prank was played by a bolt of lightning at West Liberty, near here.

It hit a wire clothes line, followed the line to Van Bailey's house, skipped onto the roof, bore a hole through to a bedroom, pierced a hole in a bed and punched a hole in Bailey's shirt as large as a half-dollar. No one was hurt.

Australians Talk Of U. S. Prohibition

Sydney, Australia.—Prohibition in the United States was discussed in the cultural council of Australia recently made public here. The report declared prohibition forces in America faced an emergency caused by opposition to the law.

After mentioning that the supreme court has upheld the constitutionality of the prohibition law, the report said that "the height of their victory over American prohibitionists have been brought rudely to earth by the great wave of revulsion against the 'bone dry' enforcement of the law, which is sweeping throughout the eastern part of the country."
