With a view to quieting some of the more jubilant passengers on the last street car to return from the Dreamland dance hall Saturday night, Officer Engle was detailed to ride in with the crowd. Complaints had been received from the company, stating that the boys on the last cars were meddling with the brakes. No disturbance was reported by the bluecoat.

Roads from Portland to Pendleton are in excellent shape for motor travel, and the trip can be made in about 10 hours, according to A. W. Lundell and Barney Oldfield, both of Pendleton. Mr. Lundell, a real estate man, and Mr. Oldfield, a machinist, are traveling over the state by automobile, pointing out the features of the Pendleton show which, they declare, will be exceptionally attractive this season. From Salem the two men will go to Eugene.
E. H. Pixley returned to Salem today for a one days business visit after spending two weeks in The Dalles. Bill Steers, last year's university of Oregon quarterback on the football eleven, is not returning to school this fall, he states. Steers home is in The Dalles.

When Mrs. Emery, of Fratom, drove her car east on Court street Monday morning, she collided with a machine driven by an unknown person who was traveling north on Liberty, according to the report made at police headquarters. Both cars were slightly damaged, but nobody was injured. It was stated.
O. W. Brown, a sawmill worker of this city, has instituted suit for divorce from Josephine Brown to whom he was married at Hardin, Mont., May 17, 1913. He alleges that she would not cook his breakfast, or care for their two children, Perry Wesley, 6 years old, and June Henrietta, 4 years old. She has also left his home and gone to Dallas, taking most of the furniture and is now living there. He asks for the nullification of their marriage and the custody of the two minor children.

R. M. Barton of Memphis, Tenn., chairman of the United States railroad labor board, is a visitor in the city today paying his respects to Governor Olcott and conferring with State Labor Commissioner A. C. Gram on labor problems in Oregon generally. Barton is on his way to Chicago after attending a hearing at San Francisco in the dispute between the railroads and their marine employees. Outside of a few minor grievances between railroads and their employees there is no big problem now confronting the federal board, according to Barton, who is a member of the group of three named by the president to represent the interests of the general public on the board. Mr. Barton is the guest of Mrs. S. M. Garrison, a relative, while in Salem.

MILLER'S Good Goods. BOYS SUIT SALE

Entrancing SUITS for Fall and Early Winter
Surely you will want one of the new suits that we are now showing. They are the most becoming things, and as smart and clever looking as can be. They are jaunty, youthful, trim, flaring, slender, tailored, semi-tailored—in fact name any style that you may prefer and we can surely show you something that will please you.

Materials Are—
The various wool leaves and mixtures that have proved themselves so practical and attractive for suit wear and that adapt themselves to the lines of this season.
Trimmings Are—
Bands of rich fur if you are looking for an exceptionally attractive suit; or if you prefer a plainer model, the clever notes about the suit are the distinctive pockets, the way in which collars are flaring and a line of bone buttons aptly placed. All suits are lined with lustrous and artistic silks.
