Rosa Cattin

New York, Sept. 21.—In the growing list of maimed and killed through automobile accidents this year most pathetic indeed is the case of little Rose Cattin, who must now go through life with the loss of both arms. A heavy motor truck cut off both arms of the child, who was playing on the sidewalk near her home.

The child was lying prostrate on the sidewalk with her arms extend- ing over the curb, playing a game with other children. The driver of the truck, to avoid a crash with a touring car which was passing, swerved quickly toward the curb and the wheels of the truck passed over the child's arms. One was crushed off just below the elbow and the other three inches above the wrist. Although her condition at first was critical she will live.

According to A. J. Williams, sec- retary and chief engineer of the National Safety Council, one per- cent is killed on an average of every thirty-five minutes in an automobile accident. No statistics have been compiled, however, showing the growing total of those crippled for life like little Rose Cattin.

The Hubbard school directors have agreed to accept all Aurora high school students who desire to attend the Hubbard high school and to furnish free transportation provided 15 pupils attend.

Prowler Slugs Nightwatchman Then Escapes

Al Jairal, a nightwatchman at the Spaulding mill, was struck on the head by a prowler whom he questioned Monday night after he had seen the man pick up a pair of gloves, Jairal told police. He was struck near the ear, police said, and his head was badly cut. Approaching the man, Jairal says he asked him what he wanted. Without replying the man struck him and ran. Jairal was unharmed.

Grappler Cannot Come to Search for Glen Sawyer

Portland cannot let Hugh Bra- ley, grappler for the city, come to Salem to assist in searching for the body of Glen Sawyer, who is be- lieved to have drowned Sunday in the Willamette river near the foot of Hickory street, it was learned late Tuesday afternoon.

Sawyer's boots and pipe were found on the bank Monday after- noon.

It is now believed that Sawyer had left his little girl, Ruth, aged three, in the boat while he went

Pastors Laud Lea and Welsh for Stand Made

Praising the moves announced by Chief of Police Jack Welsh and A. H. Lea, secretary of the state fair board, to see that no gam- bling concessions are operated and no objectionable dances are per- mitted at the fair this year, reso- lutions adopted by the Salem Min- isterial union were made public today. They are as follows:

"Whereas we understand that none of the concessions at a state fair will this year be per- mitted to conduct any gambling devices of any kind, nor any objec- tionable dances,

"Therefore be it resolved that we, the members of the Salem Ministerial union, hereby congrat- ulate the secretary of the state fair board and Chief of Police Welsh upon the splendid stand they have taken for law, order and morals, and assure them of our hearty cooperation and that of our loyal laymen in carrying out a policy which is not only in harmony with the laws of the

Supreme Court Denies Appeal In Liquor Case

George B. London, who was sen- tenced to pay a fine of $200 and serve two months in the Crook county jail upon conviction on a charge of violating the state pro- hibition laws, lost his appeal to the supreme court today when an opin- ion written by Justice Benson al- lowed a motion filed by District At- torney Wirtz to strike out the ap- pellants bill of exceptions.

Other opinions handed down by the court today follow:

Hartman & Thompson vs. Ben Selling, et al, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county. Petition for re- hearing denied by Justice Burnett.

Mamie E. Riddle et al, appellant, vs. Charles W. Isaacs; appeal from Jackson county; controversy over will. Opinion by Justice Burnett. Judge F. M. Calkins affirmed.

State vs. George B. London, ap- peal from Crook county. Motion to strike bill of exceptions allowed by Justice Benson.

Teiber & Smith vs. William Bar- low, et al, appellant; appeal from Yamhill county; action to recover attorney's fees. Opinion by Chief Justice McBride. Judge Harry M. Belt affirmed.
