Girls Replaced by Machines

Betesda, Ohio, Sept. 23. - Labor shortage is held rezponsible for the installation of tobacco stripping machines in many Belmont county cigar factories.

These machines replace girl workers. Rollers who earn $5 a thousand like the machinestripped leaf because it cuts clean, eliminating the ne-cessity of trimming ragged adges which, it is claimed, are unavoidable in hand trimming.

Thus the machines, it is estimated, effect a saving in tobacco amounting to from 40 to 70 cents per 1000 cigars. Previously mosto f the Eastern Ohio tobacco was shipped to other countries to be used for dyeing purposes, some going to Australia. Now, however, the demand from East-ern eigar makers has materially increased. One manufac-turer turningo at over 100,000 cgars with burley fillers daily is nearly 20,000,000 behind in his orders. Thus the machines, it is estimated, effect a saving in

Colorado Hunters Wear Red

Denver.--Flaring red fats may be worn by all hunt-ers this season, if the suggestion of George E. McDonald, prominent sportsman, is adopted.

The increased number of casaulties among kneters each year caused by inexperienced and careless shooters has aroused sportsmen to the need for some protective measures to prevent the numerous "accidental" shootings during the deer hunting season, and McDonald suggests that each hunter be competied to wear a red has or a red handkerchief around his neck to distinguish him elainly from game. plainly from game.
