Notice to Subscribers

The publishers of the Capital Journal, determined that the paper's character shall be sustained and that its scope and usefulness shall be enlarged, are compelled by the rising costs of production to increase the subscription prices. On November 1, the subscription rates will be advanced to 3 cents per copy, 65 cents a month by carrier, and by mail, in advance, to $6.00 a year, in Marion and Polk counties; outside of these counties, $7.00 a year. Until November 1, new and old mail subscriptions will be taken at the old rates, $4.00 a year for Polk and Marion county subscribers, and $5.00 a year for the outside.

We have hoped against hope that an increase would not be necessary but publishing costs continue to soar. Paper now costs 100 percent more than a year ago and 300 percent more than before the war. Printers are paid $1 a day over a year ago and $3 a day more than before the war. Salaries, metal, ink, telegraph service, postal rates, everything contributing to the making and distribution of a newspaper, show similar increases in cost. Even the increased rates will only partially absorb increased paper costs.

Increasing costs of publication are reflected in higher subscription rates all over the country. The penny paper has long been a thing of the past. Nearly all two cent papers have become three cent papers, the only exceptions being those papers who own their own paper mills, or have unexpired contracts with paper mills at the old basis—and as these expire, they also must raise rates. Many of the city papers, like the Seattle Times, have gone to a straight five cent basis with double price for Sunday.

During the past year the Capital Journal has spared neither expense nor effort to improve. It has increased its size, received the Associated Press full leased wire report, doubled its local reports, added special Willamette Valley news, and supplied costly features, such as "Sleepy Time Tales" for the little folks, Quillen's witty paragraphs, and the premier comics "Mutt and Jeff" and "Bringing Up Father." It has increased its mechanical facilities adding another linotype and a Ludlow Typograph and other modern equipment. A 60 foot extension to its building permits expansion the coming year.

There are few of the Capital Journal's subscribers who will fail to see, not only the wisdom but the necessity of this increase in price in order that it may become an increasingly better newspaper, serving more fully and faithfully its constituency, and few who will grudge the extra half cent a day—for nothing they can buy gives better value for the money.

Can Not Deliver

Thirty-one leading republicans have joined in a statement asking the election of Harding as president because they favor the League of Nations, and assert that Harding's election means the ratification of the league, with reservations.

"Harding has scrapped the league. If Harding is elected, the League is dead" asserts Senator Hiram Johnson, who wired to Harding "I congratulate you on your firm stand."

"The League is already scrapped and I will not go into it" said Harding in his Des Moines speech. "I do not want to clarify League objections by reservations. I want to turn my back on them. It is not interpretation but rejection that I am seeking. * * * I favor staying out."

In the opinion of the 31 leaders, then Harding is not honest when he says he will scrap the league, and that Johnson and those opposed to the league, do not know what they are talking about, when they say the election of Harding means the death of the League.

In other words, both factions of the republican party, those favoring the League and those opposing it, know the colorless character of their candidate are convinced that they will control him after election—a fine commentary on the moral bankruptcy of the party.

The pro-league republicans, however, fail to take into account the influence and determination of the treaty wreckers, who for over a year and a half have bulldozed the republican party and forced it to their terms. Though in a minority, they have controlled the party policies and will do it again as they have in the past, by threat of bolting. None of the proposed tariff and subsidy bills on the republican program, can be passed without the support of the Anti-Leaguers, and their support can only be purchased by killing the League.

The only hope for a league is by the election of Cox, for the election of Harding literally means, as Johnson says, the scrapping of the League, for it reestablishes the same conditions that are responsible for the League's rejection.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

On Dining with Quarrelsome Couples

I freely confess there are good friends of mine, with whom we are often invited to dine, who get on my nerves so that I cannot eat.

For I know that if something should chance to occur which he may not like or which doesn't please her, that we'll have to try to be pleasant somehow while they stage a fine little family row.

Now a family row is a private affair. And guests, I am certain, should never be there; I have freely maintained that a man and his wife cannot always agree on their journey through life. But they ought not to bicker and wrangle and shout and show off their rage when their friends are about; when some couple starts up a family row.

It's a difficult job to stay cool and polite when you host and your hostess are staging a fight; it's hard to talk sweet to a dagger with a frown or smile at a man that you want to knock down; you sit like a dummy and look far away.

Do Not Wait Too Long

There was, especially, a certain way in which one could always tell them apart. One had only to take the trouble to look at their horns—or feelers. For Kiddie Katydid had horns as long—or longer—than he was. But his neighbor, who was known as Leaper the Locust, wore his horns quite short.

Although they saw each other often, Kiddie and this neighbor of his were not on the best of terms. The trouble was simply this: they couldn't agree on the question of horns. Whenever they met they were sure to have a most unpleasant dispute before they parted.

Really, their quarrels were as bad as those that Jimmy Rabbit and Frisky Squirrel once had over the matter of tails. And many of the folk said it was a shame that the Grasshoppers' trouble couldn't be settled somehow.

Strange as it may seem, that remark always made Leaper the Locust terribly angry. And it enraged Kiddie Katydid as did nothing else.

The difficulty was that the flea people—as well as Farmer Green's whole family—had fallen into the lay habit of calling those two by the same name. They spoke of Kiddie Katydid as "the Long-horned Grasshopper," while they termed his neighbor "the Short-horned Grasshopper."

"It's bad enough to look some what like Leaper the Locust, without being tagged with the name of Grasshopper, along with him," Kiddie Katydid spluttered.

"Honestly, I'm tempted to move away from this neighborhood," Leaper the Locust began to tell everyone he met. "If that chap would only trim his horns to the proper length I wouldn't mind it so much. But he's actually waving them over his head, so people will notice them."

They both declared—Kiddie Katydid and Leaper the Locust—that they couldn't abide the same "Grasshopper." And they took pains to warn people in the neighborhood that they wouldn't answer to that name, no matter how loudly anyone might shout it at them.

After that a few of their neighbors took delight in calling "Grasshopper! Grasshopper!" whenever one of the two happened to be within hearing. But no matter which of them it might be—whether Leaper the Locust or Kiddie Katydid—he pretended not to hear and went right on eating.

But at last something happened that made both those jumpy gentlemen change their minds. From not wanting to be called Grass-

Kiddie Katydid had a neighbor who was a good deal like him. In deed, a careless person had to discover much difference between them. But there was a difference.

"That's for me!" Kiddie Katydid cried as soon as he heard the news.

PORTLANDER REPORTS FORTY POUNDS GAINED

E. O. Bernhardt Was Badly Run Down in Health When He Began Taking Tanlac

"I had rheumatism so bad when I began taking Tanlac that I could not get out of bed alone and would have to have someone to help me put on my clothes," said E. O. Bernhardt, a popular mechanic employed by the Portland Pulley Co., who lives at 428 East Forty-sixth St., Portland, Oregon.

"I had suffered for two years and I was in such a bad fix that I was discharged from the army on account of physical disability," he continued. "The rheumatism in my legs, chest and back had about gotten the best of me and when I sat down I would have to be helped up, in fact, I was almost helpless and had to have somebody around me nearly all the time. I could hardly get any sleep and the pains would be so bad I would wake up during the night and have to have a hot water bottle and have to be rubbed in liniment before I would be relieved enough to get to sleep. I had been in this condition for several months—so helpless I could not get about. I lost my appetite at times I even hated the sight of food, and I lost forty pounds in weight. I tried every medicine and went to Hot Springs but nothing did me any good and I kept getting worse all the time.

"A friend of my mother heard I was so bad off and told her to have me put on Tanlac. And that was a lucky day for me when I began taking it for before I had finished my second bottle I was feeling like a different man and I continued to take it until now all my troubles have completely disappeared. The rheumatism and lumbago are a thing of the past and every day I am working as hard as any man. My appetite returned and I have gained back every pound of my lost weight and I am feeling just fine all the time. I am sleeping sound every night and in short, I am in perfect health. I believe in giving everything its due credit and to Tanlac belongs all the praise for my fine condition."

Tanlac is sold in Salem by Tyler's drug store and by druggists in all other towns. (adv)

How Pure Food Can Poison You

NR Works Wonders After Dietary Blunders

Let the proper digestion, assimilation and elimination process of the body mechanism be interfered with and the purest and most wholesome of food may be converted into dangerous, disease-breeding poison.

Poor digestion and assimilation mean a poorly nourished body and low vitality. Poor elimination means clogged bowels, fermentation, putrefaction and the formation of poisonous gases which are absorbed by the blood and carried through the body.

The result is weakness, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, inactive liver, bilious attacks, loss of energy, nervousness, poor appetite, impoverished blood, sallow complexion, pimples, skin disease, and often times, serious illness.

Can you afford to take chances with constipation? Why not begin today and take Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) each night for a week or so until your stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys are sufficiently strengthened to carry on the process of digestion and elimination unaided? You'll feel a lot better for it than you've been in. Ordinary laxatives, purgatives, cathartics—salo, oil, calomel—may relieve the constipation for a few hours, but real medicine that cleans and strengthens the system is Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets). Get a 25¢ box of NR Tablets each night for a week or so before you feel and realize the benefit. When you get out and feel just fine, you need not take medicine. An occasional NR Tablet keeps your system in good and you will always be cheaper than getting well. Nature's Remedy (NR) is sold, guaranteed and made by your druggist.

Investing Is a Science

ONE CAN'T PLUNGE into the game of investing money without some study or expert advice. Yet, many estates are dissipated because the person or persons to whom the money is left plunge blindly ahead, or are the unconscious victims of designing outside parties.

That is one of the many good reasons one should be a customer at some bank where an experienced interest is taken in his or her affairs.

Who Will Be Your Executor?

- An executor occupies a position of unusual importance
- He should be able to manage another's business affairs without the owner's advice.
- Old enough to possess sound judgment and necessary experience.
- Young enough to out-live the testator.
- Strong enough, financially, to be responsible for losses caused by the error, carelessness, or dishonesty of others.
- Free enough from human feeling to administer with absolute impartiality.
- Honest enough to have no temptation, even under circumstances of old age, ill health, or financial breakdown.
- Is it not true that there is no individual who, being human, measures up to these many exacting requirements?
- This bank as your executor will fill all of these requirements.
