

America In First International Fishermen's Race

Captain Martin L. Welch and the Esperanto, which he will pilot as the American entry in the first international race between fishing schooners, the pick of the Nova Scotia and Gloucester fishing fleets. The event will be held off Halifax on October 20 and will be sailed daily, the best two out of three deciding the race. The contestants must be bona fide fishermen with at least a year's experience on the banks. The course is to be forty miles, triangular, with one race to be held in the unique class, and it is probable the event will be made an annual one. The Esperanto is being rapidly prepared for the event, which will be a real deep sea race, with the vessels manned by deep sea fishermen.

Many Family Jars Due to Glaring Wall Paper, House Decorators Say

New York, Nov. 9.—Many schemes have been suggested to make home happy and thereby cause husbands to stay by the hearth. But the latest advice is that coming from Andre Groult, famous Parisian decorator, who says the right kind of furniture is half the battle. "Innumerable homes are broken up because people don't know how to choose the right kind of furniture," says Monsieur Groult. "Women are to be blamed more than men, because the women, as a rule, have most to say about the home. If a woman would bear in mind that walls should be covered with colors which suit her complexion, that carpets should be selected to hide or display her feet, that furniture should be stiff or restful according to her temperament, whether active or languid, she would always look best in the home and therefore always be attractive to her husband. Harken, unhappy wife, and hasten to that shop where you saw the very chair you thought expressed your personality before it is too late!"

Opinion of N. Y. Woman

Further commendation for M. Groult's plan comes from a New York authority on household arts, who is also a pretty young wife. Mrs. Christine W. Nelson, instructor of the department of household arts at Teachers College, Columbia University. "I don't wish to speak officially now, but from a personal standpoint," says Mrs. Nelson, "I have always had very decided views about home furnishings. Furniture is the background of home life and should not be ornamental alone. It should meet the needs of the family, be useful and simple. Furniture should be chosen so as to minimize labor in caring for it. Simple lines, less stuffing of satins and tapestries would relieve many a housewife from a burden and transform her home into a place of pleasure. Consider the tired husband who comes home at night to the parlor. Oh, yes," smiles Mrs. Nelson, "there are really a few parlors left in the world, hard as it may seem to believe. A man wants one, good comfortable chair. He can't find it. He wants to lean back and relax, to read in a good light. Lighting is very important in point of comfort, too."

Easy Chair; Good Light

"The husband should have a restful chair, not far from a lamp which sends its rays not only down, but out far enough to be useful. Nothing is more irritating or makes a man crosser than a lamp that lights a spot on the table or floor and refuses to cast a beam on his book or newspaper. Many men are actually afraid to relax in the homes they have bought and paid for the tables are so perfect it would create a small revolution if cigarette ashes fell upon their surfaces. Then there is the subject of color in the home. Even the person who knows nothing of color is influenced unconsciously by hue color, glaring, crud color. It has a fatiguing effect. Walls are the background of the home. In a small city apartment they should be a restful gray or tan of a light tint. Dark wall covering makes for a morbid atmosphere in a room. Then there is the old red rose insanity patterned paper we see seldom happily seldom. It is annoying, irritating and distracting. Plenty of 'Living Rooms' While the home should primarily express the personality of the owner, it should be in keeping with its occupants' station in life, and should be livable. Every room should be a 'living room' in the sense of being sane and comfortable. A woman should choose furniture so that if necessary she can cure for it alone. It should not be too heavy. Massiveness and stuffed things are awful in a small room, but one large, comfortable chair is not out of place. Now, I have always been devoted to the use of a lot of wicker. It is often a gay, bright note in a room and a little touch of personality, and is not easily rubbed when for instance, children lean upon it. Above all things I want homes to be free from the institutional look."

Views of Psychologist

From a professor of psychology at Columbia University, who, in matters of the home may be called but a mere man, comes a somewhat different opinion about home furnishings and their effect on marital happiness. Professor H. L. Hollingsworth is also married, but refuses to believe too much in Monsieur Groult's theories. "Psychology points out," says this authority, "that our feelings are not localized, that is, we don't know what causes them. For instance, you have a toothache, you are cross, unreasonable, think every one is your enemy and a liar. Of course, the cause is the tooth, but you blame every one who gets in your way. In advertising, the theory is the same. You may use the actual copy in an ad and yet decide you don't care for the article advertised because you have been unconsciously influenced by an unpleasant picture illustrating a story which runs alongside the perfectly good advertisement. You will hate, perhaps some editor's opinion, because it is stated beside it is a poem that seems silly to you and to a drawing you don't like or can't appreciate."

Fortune on Table Is Returned

Portland, Me., Nov. 9.—A pile of envelopes, which an investigation proved to contain $1,500,000 worth of securities, were found lying on a table in the booth of a local bank by Clinton T. Sweet, a Portland business man. On investigation it was learned that the securities were the property of Ammi Whitney, a resident of this city, and that he had left them in the booth after examining the contents of his safe and vault. They were returned to the owner.

French General Is Coming to U.S. For Festivities

New York, Nov. 10.—General Robert Neville, the hero of Verdun, and with whose name will be connected with the salvation of France in the darkest days of the war, will arrive in America early this month. General Neville will be accompanied by Colonel Azim, who is well known in America for his services during the war. He is the director of the French League of Women's Clubs, and the Hon. Albert Sarraute, secretary of the Federation of Protestant churches in France.

Alexander Rainey, one of the leading pastors of London, and Canon E. A. Burroughs, a well known speaker, thinker, and writer and professor at Oxford and one of the strongest men among the younger clergy of the Established church of England. THE Western Dust Proof FURNACE

For Wood and Soft Coal

WESTERN MADE FOR WESTERN FUEL

The Oblong Fire Box

—Where wood is used as a fuel or when coal is used only in the coldest weather, and wood for the rest of the time, this oblong fire box Western furnace is unequalled. The box is long and will allow the wood to lay down flat. It is not so long that soft coal cannot be used to advantage with the wood. It is an ideal arrangement for both soft coal and wood and has found favor all over the Northwest. —The castings are heavy and so designed that they will not crack. Remember that they are Guaranteed for Five Years.

The Large Feed Door

—The door is made extra large to admit knots and large chunks of wood. In the ordinary furnace the wood must be split and stood up in a round fire box. In the Western Dust-Proof you can use large pieces and lay them down so that the fire is easily held over night without coal. Western made for Western fuel again.

The Dust Proof Joints

—The wedge sealed dust-proof joints are used throughout, the same as in the round-pot Western.

Interchangeable

—It is possible to change the fire box from oblong to round if you should decide to burn only coal. Aside from the shape of the fire box and the size of the feed door this furnace is exactly the same as the round-pot furnace.

Grates

—If only wood is used we furnish a regular wood grate, one fine enough to burn wood economically. If coal is used with the wood we use our regular wood and soft coal grate.

—LISTED BELOW ARE A FEW OF THE USERS OF THE WESTERN PIPELESS FURNACE:

—The Specifications Are the Same as the Round Pot Furnace, Except—
