Mrs. L. F. Ghiffith and Mrs. Frank Meredith spent Tuesday in Portland with their brother, Phil Metachen.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Meyers have returned home from Eugene where they passed a few days as the guests of friends.

Mrs. H. H. Olinger returned home the first of the week from Harrisburg where she has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Scisler for several weeks.

Mrs. Mark Hathaway and small daughter, Janet, are visiting relatives and friends in Portland for this week, planning to return Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beckley are enjoying a visit from their daughter, Mrs. Russell Fields, of Corvallis, who arrived yesterday and will spend several days here.

Mrs. Guy O. Smith and children, Lawrence and Robert, returned the first of the week from a three months visit in the east where she visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cassidy at Minneapolis, Minn. Numerous cities en route were visited.

The department president and department inspector of the Grand Army of the Republic will visit the U. S. Grant circle at the armory, Saturday, December 11. After the business meeting they will adjourn to the W. C. T. U. hall where refreshments will be served and a social hour enjoyed.

W. D. Clark has gone to Tillamook on state business for a few days.

Plan to Relax
Washington, Dec. 8.—Relaxation of the naval administration in Santo Domingo has been decided upon by the American government. A decree providing for an extension of local government control is in preparation at the state department, it was announced today and will be promulgated soon.

A fournight course in first aid to the injured will be given by government experts at Oregon Agricultural college.

Books for Christmas

By Danna Mason. Books for Babies.

The visitor looked at the three-year-old James and then asked Mrs. Brown, "why is your son so interested in that book? He has been quiet for all of ten minutes."

"He is reading," Mrs. Brown answered, "not words but pictures. He knows the stories almost as well as though he could read the words. Bring the book to me, Jimmy. He handed it to her guest.

It was "The Real Mother Goose," illustrated in colors by Blanche Fisher Wright.

"Marjory still enjoys it too," Mrs. Brown went on, "and she is nearly six. Now, I'm reading 'The Children's Blue Bird' to her. It is adapted from Maurice Maeterlinck's book by Madame Maeterlinck."

"But I have three children," the visitor interrupted, "and they never touch a book and we never read to them. They sometimes look at the funny paper, though," she added, "do you think it pays to buy real books for them?"

Mrs. Brown thought a moment. "The love of good books and the owning and care of them cannot begin too soon. And I have found that it pays to choose those illustrated by good artists.

"But let me show you the children's book shelf."

The visitor drew up her chair and began taking down the books. Her interest grew as she looked them over.

"I never knew there were such wonderful books for small children," she said.

There was "The night before Christmas," by Clement C. Moore, illustrated by Jessie Willcox Smith and Joel Chandler Harris' "Uncle Remus" with its pictures of the unhappy Doodang and Brer Fox.

"Ye three Blind Men," for very small children stood beside Robert Louis Stevenson's "A Child's Garden of Verses."

Mrs. Brown held out two small books. "My children have liked these when they were three and four years old. Perhaps your little girl would enjoy "Peter Rabbit" and "The Tale of the Flopsy Bunnies," both by Beatrix Potter. And here is another, "Stories to tell the Little Ones," by Sara Cone Bryant.

Mrs. Brown took down another book, "Goops," by Gelett Burgess. "This," she said "is called a manual of manners for 'Polite Infants.' It is baby etiquette set forth in amusing little verses."

There was "The Snow Queen and other stories," from Hans Christian Anderson with lovely colored illustrations by Edmund Dulac. Beside it stood Charles Kingsley's, "The Water Babies." It was illustrated by Jessie Willcox Smith and brings fairy land to children and enchants grownups.

"The Pied Piper" by Robert Browning came next and then "Under the Window" delightful little verses and quaint pictures by Kate Greenway. "The Wonder Book for Boys and Girls," by Nathaniel Hawthorne and "Just so Stories" by Rudyard Kipling stood side by side.

The visitor arose, "I am going to buy some of these for my children for Christmas," she said.

"Better look at some of the exhibits for children's book week first," Mrs. Brown suggested. "You may find others that you would like at any rate. I am glad you are going to start them up 'the golden staircase.'"

"In Every Respect" says the Good Judge

You get more genuine chewing satisfaction from the Real Tobacco Chew than you ever got from the ordinary kind.

The good tobacco taste lasts so long—a small chew of this class of tobacco lasts much longer than a big chew of the old kind. That's why it costs less to use.

Any man who has used both kinds will tell you that.
